Yanks Breach Maginot Line

Liberty . . . And Ladies Meet

Two French women of opposing factions—one pro-Nazi and the other anti-Nazi—meet and swap punches in Brignoles shortly after that town was liberated. The lady at right seems to be having her say, too, but doesn't take part in the fisticuffs. Scenes such as this are many throughout France today . . . as it's pay-off time for those who played ball with the Nazis.

Yanks Capture Verdun

By JAMES M. LONG

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 1 (AP)—The U. S. Third Army swept through and beyond the French fortress city of Verdun today in a landslide offensive which at its present pace promises to carry over into an invasion of Germany's frontiers before nightfall.

Behind the channel rocket coast, Field Marshal Montgomery's tank forces, which had burst forward 80 miles in three days, poured toward Belgium's Flanders fields only 45 miles distant, and approached the back door of Calais itself.

Montgomery's spearhead paralleled the channel coast for 100 miles and threatened to hammer out for the second time in this war a giant trap around Calais and Dunkirk—this time with Germans in it. The British were only 70 miles south of Calais.

Lt. Gen. Patton's armor ground out an advance of 65 miles in less than 24 hours to reach Verdun—a pace which left official headquarters communiques lagging many hours behind. But even at that gait he could catch few fleeing Germans.

On a 70-mile front Americans had stabbed to or across the Belgium border in the vicinity of historic Sedan, reached to within 49 miles of the German frontier at Verdun, and in an eastward thrust through St. Dizier to Commercy had advanced to within 58 miles of Germany's Saar.

They had crossed at a jump the famous Argonne forest and the Meuse, where Gen. Pershing's doughboys fought for six bitter weeks in 1918, and driven through or past some of the most important works of the old French Maginot Line.

Verdun is only 30 miles from the duchy of Luxembourg and 46 miles from the rail center of Metz.

Commercy is 14 miles from Toul and 26 miles from Nancy, important fortress cities in the border region, and only 10 miles south of St. Mihiel, where American troops made history in 1918.

With Lt. Gen. Hodge's First U. S. Army on the left and Patton's forces on the right the Americans were driving a huge spike into the same vital area where in 1918 Pershing's penetration across lines of escape out of northern France and Belgium forced the November armistice.

Front line dispatches last night told of the drive across the Meuse between Sedan, historic battle ground of 1870, 1918 and 1940, and Charleville, and to the outskirts of Sedan itself. Sedan is but five miles from the Belgian border.

Verdun fell yesterday to Patton's troops who advanced 65 miles from Reims in less than 24 hours. The swift stab directly through the Argonne Forest, where American doughboys fought and died in 1918, carried across the Meuse River to the rear of the old Maginot Line.

Associated Press Correspondent Edward D. Ball, from Verdun, said the Americans plunged beyond the River Meuse in close pursuit of the Germans who put up only a brief fight for the city.

(NBC in New York recorded a BBC broadcast this morning saying reports from advanced correspondents in the Verdun sector place American forces only 25 miles from the German border.)

Another column, advancing from St. Dizier, captured Commercy, on the Meuse, 10 miles south of famed St. Mihiel and 28 miles west of Nancy.

Front dispatches said U. S. First Army forces had penetrated Se-

World War II, most widespread and destructive war in the history of mankind, is five years old today. It was at 5:30 a. m. on Sept. 1, 1939, when Adolf Hitler launched his legions of death across the Polish frontier, as the first phase of his nightmare dream of world conquest. Within four hours, Warsaw and five other Polish cities were in flames and the Luftwaffe was raining havoc from the air over all Poland.

1000 Bombers To Hit Japan

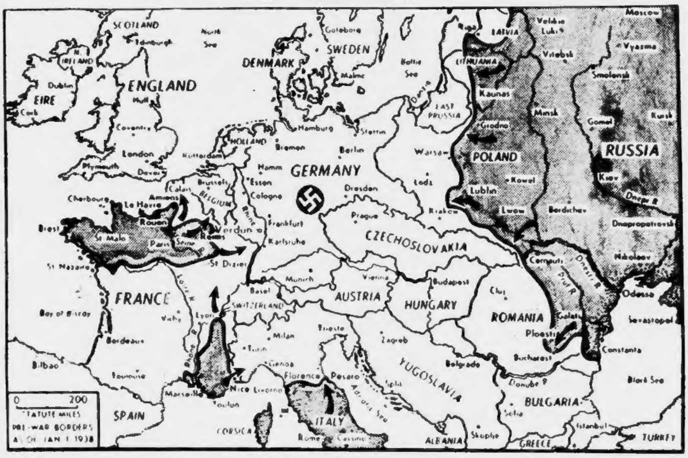
By Associated Press

Thousand-plane raids on Japan were forecast by the U. S. Army air command for the Pacific as Allied bombers slashed at Formosa, key to the area named as potential bases.

The attack on Formosa off the China coast, was made by China based Liberators and Mitchells, Tokyo radio reported today.

Other bombers raked the perimeter of Japan's defense from the equator to Paramushiro in the North Pacific.

Heaviest blows centered around the southern Philippines. Davao, largest city of the southern Philippines, was left ablaze in the eighth raid in recent weeks; four Japanese ships, including a destroyer, were sunk or crippled in the Dutch Celebes to the south; Palau and Yap to the east were hit in daily softening-up raids.



EUROPE—Four fronts in the war for Europe are shown here—with the Russians dashing for the Danube in the east, the British hitting against the Nazi Gothic Line in Italy, the Yanks pressing on the Italian border in the south of France and the Allies gaining Verdun and territory along the rocket coast in the north.

Reds Head for Danube

By NATALIA RENE

MOSCOW, Sept. 1 (INS)—Red army legions rolled through the Romanian capital of Bucharest today, reaching the Bulgarian border. Gen. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army raced 32 miles south of the blazing Ploesti oil fields to enter Bucharest, where it scarcely paused before continuing its spectacular dash toward the Danube river and a possible junction with Marshal Tito's Yugoslav armies of liberation.

The Army newspaper Red Star, describing the battle for Bucharest, said the Germans lost thousands of men killed or captured and huge numbers of tanks, artillery pieces and transport in their headlong retreat.

Hundreds of miles to the north, Marshal Rokossovsky's First White Russian Army crashed into the northern suburbs of Warsaw in what may be the beginning of the final drive to free that desolate capital from the Nazis.

There were mingled emotions in Bucharest. For the first time since 1941, Romanian fiddlers came out of cafes to play half-forgotten snatches of Russian folksongs which the Germans had designated as verboten.

Terms for Bulgaria; Hungary Asks Pact

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP)—The Bulgarian government of Ivan Bagrianov fell today shortly after its failure to win an easy way out of the war by pleading neutrality and amid indications of far-reaching internal developments within the Balkan kingdom.

Simultaneously it was disclosed the European advisory commission had drafted armistice terms for Bulgaria — a demonstration of British-American-Russian solidarity on the terms which the Balkan satellite must meet to get out of the conflict. Russian armies were pushing along the country's northern frontier, ready to send tank columns coursing across her northern plains.

At the same time rumors spread throughout Europe Hungary was trying to contact the Allies on armistice terms.

With Romania already out of Hitler's lineup and negotiating in Moscow for terms on which she might join the Allies as a co-belligerent, Hitler's southeastern front appeared to be falling apart.

It was regarded as certain Bulgaria must withdraw all troops to her pre-war borders and return to Greece and Yugoslavia Macedonia and Thrace.

CAIRO, Sept. 1 (AP)—Ankara advices said today 194 German troops surrendered voluntarily to Turkish authorities in the Greek frontier and were interned.

Indications were that German forces in Greece were being thinned in a reshuffle to cover railways into the occupied kingdom. This was one result of Bulgaria's armistice talks. The Germans apparently were drawing troops up to lines threatened by Bulgaria's withdrawal.

Reports indicated Bulgar troops were evacuating Serbia and northern Greece, but no withdrawals have yet been reported from Macedonia and Thrace.

Outer Gothic Line Pierced

ROME, Sept. 1 (AP)—Eighth Army troops have broken through the outer Gothic Line defense in northern Italy to a depth of 1000 yards at one point but are meeting strong German resistance north of the Foglia river, where the Nazis have hurled in tanks in repeated counter-attacks, Allied headquarters announced today.

In Pesaro steady fighting was reported continuing between British and Polish troops and the German first parachute division.

Robot Bases Whacked Again

LONDON, Sept. 1 (INS)—One of the biggest armadas of Allied planes ever seen, thundered out over the Straits of Dover today in crystal clear weather, presumably headed for the Nazi robot bomb area of northern France and targets in the toppling Reich.

The daylight operations followed a Mosquito plane night raid on Dusseldorf, during which two-ton blockbusters were dropped on industrial installations.

Despite the Allied drives on the robot bomb coast, there was no noticeable letup in the pilotless aircraft attacks

Channel Guns In Big Barrage

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP)—Heavy German coastal guns near Boulogne hurled nearly 100 shells today in a four-hour barrage which Berlin said was "drum fire of the heaviest type against the English invasion port routes."

Several seacoast towns were heavily damaged.

Boulogne is in the path of swiftly advancing Allied arms. It appeared possible that the Germans were trying to unload as much ammunition as possible before the Allies arrived.

France Hopeless to the Nazis

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP)—A German military spokesman described the German situation today in northern France as "hopeless for the time being."

Speaking over the Berlin radio of two big Allied bulges in the Amiens and Meuse areas, the spokesman compared the plight of the Germans now with their "hopeless" situation four weeks ago which he said had been "mastered."

Another German military spokesman analyzing developments on the western front, declared that "the German high command refuses to accept the Allied challenge to fight a decisive battle in France."

The German armies, the spokesman said, are fighting "a delaying action within the framework of mobile warfare."

THEIR SUMMER VACATION at Camp High Meadows in Maine over, Janette and Betty Thalman come home to prepare to return to school . . . and here they are as the cameraman caught them after their arrival at North Station. As their trip ended, thousands of other Greater Bostonians today started an exodus from the Hub . . . bound for resorts for the Labor Day week-end.

2-Hour Attack Takes Verdun

By PIERRE J. HUSS

VERDUN, Aug. 31, 6 p. m. (delayed) (INS)—Lt. Gen. Patton's Third U. S. Army seized the historic fortress city of Verdun today in 24 hours. The Kaiser's armies failed to do it in four years.

Starting from a point east of Reims at 4 p. m. Wednesday, Patton's armored columns, followed by motorized infantry, cut a 65-mile swath straight through the Hindenburg Line and the Argonne Forest to enter Verdun at 11 a. m. today. Two hours later they held the entire city, including its dismantled forts and the adjacent heights.

The Germans seemed completely unable to cope with the whirlwind rush of the Third Army. A couple of their 88's knocked out three of our tanks, but they were knocked back quickly and withdrew across the Meuse river after blowing up some bridges.

They shelled the eastern edge of Verdun intermittently up to 6 p. m.

We laid down artillery fire in the eastern hills in mid-afternoon while the populace of Verdun celebrated the liberation of the city, which came as a tremendous surprise.

The city before which the crown prince of Germany sacrificed a million German lives was captured by Lt. Col. Edward McConnell of Paxton, N. C., whom the mayor of Verdun decorated at the city hall.

The first GI's inside the city were Sgt. Alfred Schultz of Loyal, Wis., and Corp. Don Matty of Monongahela, Pa.

All the famed forts of Verdun fell without a shot being fired and it required only the turning of rusty keys in the iron gates leading to the inner tunnels of each scarred strongpoint to let us in.

Two caretakers at the pre-war tourist paradise, both of whom fought at Verdun for four years, said the Germans two years ago began to blow up the gun turrets of an entire ring of forts and remove the guns.

I asked them why.

The Frenchmen laughed.

"The Boche," they said, "boasted it wasn't necessary and Verdun would never be needed again . . . They said any American or British attempt to land on the continent would be smashed on the beaches."

Old-timers at Verdun predict the fall of the city foreshadows the early fall of German military power. They say the Germans were totally disorganized in the past week and frankly admit they are whipped, but that the Siegfried Line is their last hope against an ignoble surrender.

Verdun stands at the eastern fringes of the Argonne Forest.

Brother, 9, Claims 2-Year-Old Stray

After a very pleasant morning in the Dudley st. station chattering baby talk to the officers, a 2½-year-old boy, picked up while taking a stroll clad only in his underwear, was identified and taken home by his 9-year-old brother.

The baby was Thomas Starkey, who lives on Winthrop st. in Roxbury. When first found on Blue Hill ave. in the dawn's early light he had a toy boat under one arm and explained he was about to go sailing.

Unable to tell who he was, he stayed at the station for several hours, with about 20 husky cops playing nursemaid and entertaining him with G-man stories, until Brother John showed up.

"Mother sent me to get Tommy," John told the cops, "she's busy today."

Lake is With Patton In Argonne as in '18

By AUSTEN LAKE

WITH PATTON'S ARMY ON THE ROAD TO BERLIN, Aug. 31 (delayed)—We traveled early this morning through the Argonne Forest, that dark and bloody ground where in World War I thousands of American soldiers died to preevnt a recurance of the war that is killing their sons and younger brothers.

But this time instead of a bush to bush battle and the agony of months the U. S. Army traveled at a 35-mph clip as fast as our heavy armor could speed with safety.

And so on to Verdun, now in our hands, a city instead of being an undulating mass of rubbish.

There is little ruin in the city which 25 years ago this date was a mound of shattered masonry.

By coincidence this writer rode again on the coattails of Lt. Gen George S. Patton as he had done a quarter century ago over this same terrain.

Only this time there were no huddled forms of dead Americans, no shattered hulks of tanks nor the devastating effect of shell fire which in that older time had stripped the trees of their leaves and left areas of ugly, splintered stumps.

The forest was green and serene as we passed through. No shot broke the morning calm.

Verdun, normally a quiet little backwater during peace time, is again a terminal point of war, the spot where in France's braver day a general named Henri Phillippe Petain had won what seemed eternal fame with his historic epigram, "They shall not pass."

It was the tallying point of World War I and the spot where the German tide began to recede to become a headlong route.

There were no brave words this time, for Petain is somewhere in the German interior, a collaborator or prisoner with his old enemy and Verdun is only a wayside marker in the advance of the American armies which today stand almost within shouting distance of the Belgian border.

Once again German arms are near a headlong rout.

The writer saw and talked with Gen. Patton today for the first time since War I.

He was the same tall, austere figure with his almost albino hair changed unnoticeably to white.

What he said I may not quote, but in the great armed force which is sweeping over the familiar battle fields there was only one other man as far as I can find out who was with him in that older day. I mean the writer and I trust it will not seem egotistical to claim this distinction.

It was 26 years ago that a shell splinter struck Patton in the hip and gained him the Distinguished Service Cross and the Purple Heart.

The mammoth tanks which he leads now are colossal compared with the tiny ineffectual Renaults that were his feeble weapon in the long ago.

So impetuous was their giant rush that the German panzers, badly disorganized, fled without attempting serious battle.

Their deserted gear was strewn throughout the fields and forests, mute monuments of their haste to disown their late body master, Hitler, and salvage their skins.

Today Patton poises to strike again.

Mazur, Grid Star, Ace Now

By AUSTEN LAKE

ON THE ROAD TO PARIS (delayed)—Maybe you remember Henry J. Mazur, West Point halfback out of Lowell, whose knack for throwing footballs used to make the sport writers go to their dictionaries for new glory words to fit his feats? When Henry last came to Boston with the Cadet varsity in '42, the sport pages printed black headlines. "Harvard must solve Mazur's air attack," they said.

For Henry could throw the oval egg or swineskin, as the sport authors put it in their quaint langwidge, through the bunghole of a barrel at 30 paces. He was captain OF the Army then. He is captain IN the Army now and still leading air attacks.

For he is flight leader of a fighter squadron based in Normandy, whose specialty is dropping 500-pound bombs from under his Thunderbolt's wings on Tiger tanks, enemy troop trains or truck convoys, and generally messing up anything German that the 9th Air Force Tactical Command doesn't like.

The game isn't so different from the time when the writer was umpiring West Point games and young Mazur was making All-America, except that this contest is to the death and our side is all All-American to the core.

So today I came upon Henry Mazur again as he sat in a pilot's tent under a canopy of artificial foliage that wouldn't fool anybody, including a Nazi reconnaissance plane, if any dared poke around. He had just come from a dry run over enemy lines, which is air force slang for a routine flight though sometimes they call them milk runs, which means they are boresome as delivering bottles on somebody's doorstep.

What Mazur wanted to talk about was a clipping penalty he said I'd called on him some autumns ago, and which I said I didn't! How th' hell, said Henry, could a defensive halfback clip anybody? Anyway, he said, he was the guy who'd been clipped!

But then, he said, maybe the 15-yard penalty wasn't so serious after all, because the penalty for getting clipped from behind in this aerial war was a stream of enemy bullets and, at worst—pouf!

There was a horde of ground crew soldiers and pilots sitting in a meadow under a shade tree where a team of touring USO comedians were giving a vaudeville skit. By U. S. burlesque standards, it was pure ham. But it had the GI's convulsed on the grass.

One comic, simulating a drunk, sang about how his mother-in-law

India Row Stirs Threat To Oust British Envoys

Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—Removal of William Phillips, former under-secretary of state and special ambassador to India, from the staff of Gen. Eisenhower in London, at the insistence of the British government, today threatened to bring an investigation of British interference in American internal affairs.

Sen. A. B. Chandler (D.) of Kentucky, has called on President Roosevelt to "make a full report to the Senate on conditions in India, and on any foreign interference in American diplomacy," as a result of the ousting of Phillips.

William Phillips

And in the House, Rep Calvin D. Johnson (R.) of Illinois, has asked that the British Minister to Washington and the British Minister for India in Washington be declared persona non grata "should they continue their efforts to mold public opinion" concerning Phillips.

Sen. Chandler charged "Great Britain, which has not borne and will not bear the brunt of the struggle against Japan, by its mismanagement of the Indian situation has made for great discouragement and irritation for Gen. tilliwell and his heroic fighters."

"But apparently our British allies don't think we ought to know about the Indian problems," Chandler declared. "And, what's more, they apparently don't think the President should know about them."

Chandler confirmed U. S. Ambassador John Winant that Phillips was "persona non grata" to the British.

Chandler charged British officials have protested to American newspaper publishers against publishing of Phillips' views.

"Things like this make for fear, suspicion and mistrust," Chandler declared. "If our war is to succeed, we must have friendship and understanding among the Allies."

Drew Pearson, Washington Merry-Go-Round author, recently revealed that Phillips was declaredpersona non grata in London because of a report he made to President Roosevelt highly critical of British policy in India. In his report, Phillips declared it was "time for the British to act."

Pearson charged that both Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Minister Eden had "made things uncomfortable" for Phillips, demanding all sorts of explanations from the United States government, and finally had informed the State Department that Phillips was persona non grata and must leave London.

The full text of Phillips' letter to the President, made public fo the first time, follows:

"May I add a few words to what I said to you on Tuesday afternoon when I had the pleasure of giving you an oral report on my impressions of the Indian situation.

"Assuming that India is known to be an important base for our future operations against Burma and Japan, it would seem to be of highest importance that we should have around us a sympathetic India rather than an indifferent and possibly a hostile India.

"It would appear that we will have the prime responsibility in the conduct of the war against Japan. There is no evidence that the British intend to do more than give token assistance.

"If that is so, then the conditions surrounding our base in India become of vital importance.

"At preesnt, the Indian people are at war only in a legal sense, as for various reasons the British government declared India in the conflict without the formality of consulting Indian leaders or even the Indian legislature.

"Indians feel they have no voice in the government and therefore no responsibility in the conduct of the war.

"They feel that they have nothing to fight for, as they are convinced that the professed war aims of the United Nations do not apply to them. The British Prime Minister, in fact, has stated that the provisions of the Atlantic Charter are not applicable to India, and it is not unnatural therefore that Indian leaders are beginning to wonder whether the charter is only for the benefit of white races.

"The present Indian Army is purely mercenary and only that part of it which is drawn from the martial races has been tried in actual warfare and these martial soldiers represent only 33 per cent of the army.

"Gen. Stilwell has expressed his concern over the situation and in particular in regard to the poor morale of the Indian officers.

"The attitude of the general public towards the war is even worse lassitude and indifference and bitterness have increased as a result of the famine conditions, the growing high cost of living and continued political deadlock.

"While India is broken politically into various parties and groups all have one object in common eventual freedom and independence from British domination.

"There would seem to be only one remedy to this highly unsatisfactory situation in which we are unfortunately but nevertheless seriously involved, and that is to change the attitude of the people of India towards the war, make them feel that we want them to assume responsibilities to the United Nations and are prepared to give them facilities for doing so and that the voice of India will play an importan [illegible] in the reconstruction of the [illegible]ld.

"The present political conditions do not permit of any improvement in this respect, even though the British should fail again, it is high time that they should make an effort to improve conditions and reestablish confidence among the Indian people that their future independence is to be granted.

"Words are of no avail. They only aggravate the present situation.

"It is time for the British to act. This they can do by a solemn declaration from the King Emperor that India will achieve her independence at a specific date after the war and as a guarantee of good faith in this respect a provisional representative coalition government will be re-established at the center and limited powers transferred to it.

"I feel strongly, Mr. President, that in view of our military position in India we should have a voice in these matters.

"It is not right for the British to say this is none of your business when we alone presumably will have the major part to play in the struggle with Japan.

"If we do nothing and merely accept the British point of view that conditions in India are none of our business, then we must be prepared for various serious consequences in the internal situation in India which may develop as a result of the despair and misery and antiwhite sentiments of hundreds of millions of subject people.

"The peoples of Asia and I am supported in this opinion by other diplomatic and military observers —cynically regard this war as one between Fascist and imperialist powers.

"A generous British gesture to India would change this undesirable political atmosphere. India itself might then be expected more positively to support our war effort against Japan.

"China, which regards the Anglo-American bloc with misgivings and mistrust, might then be assured that we are in truth fighting for a better world.

"And the colonial people conquered by the Japanese might hopefully feel that they have something better to look forward to than simply a return to their old masters.

"Such a gesture, Mr. President, will produce not only a tremendous psychological stimulus to flagging morale through Asia and facilitate our military operations in that theater, but it will also be proof positive to all peoples our own and the British included that this is not a war of power politics, but a war for all we say it is."

Lord Halifax, British ambassador, last night curtly denied Senator Chandler's charge that the British government had requested Ambassador Phillips' recall.

British Scheme to Grab War Glory Scored by Chandler

Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's promotion to the rank of field marshal is in line with the typical British policy of outranking Americans in all "diplomatic and military" theaters, Sen. A. B. Chandler (D.) of Kentucky said today.

"Gen. Eisenhower announced Gen. Bradley had been promoted to equal status with Montgomery only yesterday," he said, "and, of course, the British made Montgomery a field marshal.

"I do not criticize the British, but I do think it's time we went over the entire American rank status in the field. When I went around the world last year as a member of the Senate committee assigned to inspection of our establishments, I could not help but note that the British always outranked our fellows. That gives them the opportunity to dominate the show—whatever it is."

However, Maj. Gen. Alexander D. Surles, chief of the Army bureau of public relations, said Gen. Eisenhower "will remain in charge of the invasion against Germany and Field Marshal Montgomery will remain as one of his deputies."

Boy, 15, Runs Farm As Brothers Serve

By ALICE BISSELL

When 15-year-old Bill Dykeman went today to do his ploughing, he was whistling "America the Beautiful."

Of course, he didn't realize what he was whistling. He had too much to do—milk the cows, pick apples for his mother to make into jelly, and a hundred other jobs that go with running a 38-acre farm.

And you can bet your last dollar that his two big brothers in the service know what they are fighting for and what they will find when they come home. While Jimmy is in the Marines in the South Pacific, and Louis is an electrician's mate in the Navy, the other seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dykeman of West st., Stoughton, see to it that the farm will be humming for them when the war is over.

Peggy Dykeman

Young Bill is chief farmer and boss. He goes to Norfolk County Agricultural School in Walpole. His dad is an electrical engineer and is busy night and day caring for 35 defense plants as well as private homes.

Betty, 17, spent her vacation in Nova Scotia pitching hay, and is home now to help with the cranberry bog in the back yard.

Mother Dykeman makes butter and cheese and has already preserved enough food to last through the winter.

Up at 6 a. m., each child has a job. Jack, 10, fishes their pond a few times a week and brings home a family supper of hornpout, perch and pickerel.

"My job is to care for Hilda, Molly and Sugar Plum, my wonderful cows," says 11-year-old Peggy.

Jerry, the big work horse, is their best friend. He hauls the wood the kids have chopped to last through the winter. They even grow flowers, and the little girls save the burlap grain bags and make hooked rugs from them.

Reds Tell of Propaganda

By MEL MEADOWS

Seattle Post-Intelligencer Staff Writer

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 1—Two of seven Russians, all facing the death penalty for escaping Soviet ships, all fearful of being shanghaied since their secret release by immigration officials, told their amazing stories exclusively to the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Located in their refuge, a large comfortable house in Seattle, the two men, Alexander Nikitin, 21, and George Sereda, 21, told of Soviet officials indoctrinating Red seamen with such political propaganda as: "America is helping Russia now—but only to save the skins of her capitalists."

Speaking through an interpreter, the men, who believe they are hunted by agents of the GPU, consented to the interview only after assurance the location of their refuge would not be made public.

They are two of the four men the United States Immigration Service refused to relinquish, despite personal appeals of the Russian consul general, Andrei F. Vassiliev, and his vice-consul, Grigori P. Kasparov.

The Soviet diplomats came to Seattle from San Francisco Aug. 7 to effect return of the "deserters" to their homeland where admittedly they face execution.

Shortly after the Soviet officials were informed that "the cases are still being processed in Washington," the two officers and two seamen, together with three other seamen who had deserted previously, were released under $500 bond. Immediately they went into hiding.

Raphael P. Bonham, director of Immigration and naturalization said today "their cases are still being processed." He declined to discuss their whereabouts or the conditions under which they had been released, because "we are trying hard to keep information from those who might harm them. We understand they have been threatened, and, of course, they are in danger of being shanghaied."

Clean-cut and clear-eyed, Nikitin and Sereda spoke first and fervently of "life and freedom that is America—when you can talk and laugh and smoke, and nobody is behind you if you are American."

The only request they made, during a long interview in which they talked freely but at times painfully, was: "You say: 'We did not desert our ship, we deserted Russia.' All of us would like to come to America. The ship even, if it had legs, would surrender to immigration. That is one word spoken softly at night by the crews of Russian ships: 'immigration.'

"Whenever we go ashore in America, not to come back to Russia, we say if stopped: 'immigration.' Always is the fear we will be taken first to Russian consul."

Sereda, swarthy and aged beyond his years, told of going "to Grade 3 School," until his aged and ailing father was convicted of having two cows with only one reported to the government.

"Father was too old, too ill to serve his sentence. If he died before his sentence was completed, justice would not be exacted. So I went in his stead to the concentration camp."

Sereda, after eight years in a Siberian concentration camp volunteered for hazardous military duty, was wounded on the Finnish front and confined to a hospital for a year. Having thus redeemed himself, he was permitted to sail on an offshore vessel.

Blond Nikitin, who smiles readily and blushes easily, has been a seaman since he was 16. He told of the careful screening of men who go to sea, of the long political instruction courses before they sail, of the ever watchful eye of a political agent on every ship.

Seattle is the first American port the two men had ever seen. Was America as he pictured it? "No, no. All of our years, we have been told American workers are starved and lying in the streets without clothes; that the rich, who are the government of America, are very rich.

"It is the government, the rich—not the workers—who send all the war-help to Russia.

"Were you told to avoid contack with Americans?"

"Yes. We were instructed never to get friendly with Americans. Especially American women, who would lure us away in automobiles, where American men who are enemies of Russia would see that we never returned."

Asked if they were aware that execution was the penalty for desertion, they told soberly of "punishments, like putting a man in the fire-box of coal-burning ships. Always, the deserter disappears before he reaches Russia."

OUR REPRESENTATIVE—The Bay State will have lovely 20-year-old Lucille Descoteau of Lowell as its representative in the Miss America contest at Atlantic City next week. Chosen as "Miss Massachusetts" in a contest at the RKO-Boston Theater, Miss Descoteau is a secretary at Ft. Devens.

Girl, 15, Faces Court In Assault Robbery

Youth dominated the crime picture in Roxbury court again today, when a 15-year-old Roxbury girl, allegedly a lure for a gang of young "drunk rollers," surrendered herself on a warrant charging she was an accessory before the fact of assault and robbery.

The girl, who was accompanied by her father and an attorney, had been given a one-year suspended sentence on a delinquency charge in the same case. Additional evidence prompted Judge Frankland W. L. Miles to issue the accessory warrant.

Also in court to await disposition of her case was Rebecca Maloof, 18, of Millmont st., Dorchester, charged with carrying a gun owned by one of the young gangsters.

She had pleaded guilty to the gun charge before Judge Samuel Eisenstadt but he had warned her how serious the charge was and directed her to enter a plea of innocence.

Before Judge Miles for the rearraignment this morning, her counsel, Harold Karp, asked for a contisuance. He explained he had just entered the case.

The jurist declared: "I'm tired of delay in these cases. I'll give you just 10 minutes for investigation. Either she is guilty or not guilty. She will go on trial today."

An interested spectator was Harold L. Weiler of Utica, N. Y., a merchant seaman, who was badly beaten and robbed in the Fenway Aug. 10 by the Roxbury youths with whom the girls are alleged to have operated.

Normal Holiday Travel Seen

"A generally fine week-end" was forecast today as transportation officials prepared to handle Labor Day travel which was expected to be only average for a holiday week-end.

The Boston Weather Bureau predicted temperatures will average slightly above normal in Southern New England will clear skies prevailing until Tuesday when showers were expected.

Recent easing of a gasoline shortage was expected to aid transportation companies greatly.

Travel to Cape Cod vacation spots for the final summer holiday is expected to be as heavy as usual, but officials of the New Haven railroad said no extra trains would be put on. They explained that every piece of rolling stock they own is now in operation.

A Boston & Maine spokesman said trains have been well loaded during the past week, bringing youngsters back from northern New England camps.

Work on Labor Day Urged by CIO Official

Calling upon war workers and farmers to stay at their tasks on Labor Day, Jack Hurvich, president of Greater Boston CIO Industrial Council, today announced his organization will omit formal observance of the holiday.

"I feel labor can ill afford to pause lest it interrupt the success now being achieved by our compatriots on the military front," Hurvich declared.

He said labor would work to achieve victory in 1944, adding that "labor expects to share in the framing, writing and establishing of that just peace."

Boy Commando's Rescue

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 1 (AP)—Four-year-old Leonard Earl Radford has learned that the life of a Commando has its hardships.

While playing yesterday with two other boys, 4 and 10, he was ordered to advance across an open field. Leonard started bravely, but ran into difficulties when he stepped into a booby trap an eight-foot hole 16 inches across, which had been covered with paper and camouflaged.

Firemen were rushed to the scene and began tunneling to the boy, who stood in water up to his hips.

Leonard assured them that "my mommy wants me, I think."

One of the firemen was injured when struck in the head with a pick, but at H-hour plus 2:30 the boy was rescued and taken to a hospital.

He offered the firemen two pennies for their work, but they told him to save them for his next trip to the PX.

Boy Wants to Send Yule Gift to Marine

A 13-year-old East Boston boy who hopes to be a Marine when "I am old enough" today enrolled in the Christmas Gifts to Buddies Overseas campaign with his request that he be given the opportunity to make Christmas happier for some overseas fighting man.

Generously displaying willingness to send a gift "anywhere so long as it is to a serviceman," Robert Caratelli of Frankfort st., East Boston, added:

"If you can, will you please send me a Marine's name because I like Marines and hope to be one when I am old enough. You see, I am only 13 years old but don't worry. I'll send a good Christmas package and it will be expensive, too."

Another lad, Jackie Fisher of Chelsea st., East Boston, wrote that "we have no one in the service at our house," and he said he wanted to send gifts to two men overseas just to do some little thing to make a fighting man happy.

From young and old alike these demonstrations of unselfish willingness to cheer an unknown serviceman are being received daily at the Boston Record-American and Sunday Advertiser.

Many who participated in campaigns of past years have written of their pleasure in sending the gifts. Typical was the comment of Alice M. Moffatt of Fountain st., Roxbury, who wrote:

"I am sure I will get as much pleasure, putting a box together this year, as I did in the past two years. If everyone knew how much the men enjoy the gifts they would all enroll in your campaign."

If you wish to join this worthy cause, fill out the coupon which will be printed daily in the Record-American, and in the Sunday Advertiser. Mail the coupon to the Christmas Gifts Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. Within a few days you will receive the name of an overseas man in your community to whom you may bring great happiness through a Christmas gift.

Remember, the mailing time for overseas Christmas packages is Sept. 15 to Oct. 15, to any man in Army or Navy, Marines and Coast Guard. It is not too early to prepare your Christmas boxes now.

It is important that you select gifts that will reach the boys intact. Perishables will not be accepted, nor foods and materials of a fragile nature. Intoxicants and inflammables are barred. Sacks of parcels travel in the hold of a ship with the temperature often reaching 120 degrees, which melts chocolate, spoils food and decays fruit.

Watch the columns of these papers for further instructions on mailing your overseas gifts.

Vast World Agency Envisioned by F. D.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—The world security organization being rough-drafted at Dumbarton Oaks is regarded by many American officials close to President Roosevelt as only one wing of a greater structure envisioned to provide international co-operation in economic and human welfare activities as well as political problems.

The form of the proposed parent structure is still unshaped, but, it was learned today, its general concept goes beyond the comments on the Dumbarton Oaks talks made this week by the President and Secretary of State Hull.

The President said he envisioned a world agency with jurisdiction over such questions as food and finances as well as the use of military force to preserve peace. Hull said the British-Russian-American conferees at Dumbarton Oaks were concerned strictly with security, that is, political, questions.

One plan for the broader structure which has been discussed and is favorably considered by some of the President's advisers is to set up three parallel organizations, which might be tied together and given general policy direction by periodic meetings of the heads of states, something along the line of the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference at Teheran.

The three organizations in this case would be:

1—Security—including council, assembly, court and machinery which would work with purely political problems such as boundary disputes and potential aggressor nations, using force if necessary to preserve world peace.

2—Economic—tieing together separate agencies now being set up or projected on oil, rubber, aviation, shipping and the like and to seek to remove causes of war by improving world trade and economic conditions.

3—Welfare embracing the United Nations Relief Administration (temporary), the food conference (permanent), health, education and such, all also with the general purpose of removing conditions leading to war.

Navy to Teach How to Pack

The U. S. Navy has organized a school at the Boston Consolidated Gas Co. hall, Jamaica Plain, to instruct inspectors and contractors in the latest methods of packaging war material, it was announced by the Boston salvage committee today.

Keynote of the instruction, ot be directed by Lt. Harry E. Rodinbaugh, Jr., is to stress that more and more paper packaging will be required in the invasion of Japan after Germany has fallen.

"Enough waste paper to meet our needs is not being contributed," Lt. Rodinbaugh declared. "The Navy has been compelled to take extraordinary steps to conserve paper, wrapping and cartons and to find better ways to ship our supplies to the Pacific theater of war. It is necessary to pack things right to reach the fighting fronts, and packing depends on paper."

Medics Never Had Visit Home

(Mr. Finnegan's dispatches have been delayed and many of those about whom he wrote from England may be in the thick of the battle in France.)

By HUCK FINNEGAN

SOUTHERN ENGLAND—There is a group of medics in these British Isles who will have been overseas two years come September. That isn't a record by any means, because we've met regular Army men who were in Iceland as far back as September of '41, and who now are in France fighting. But these medics claim that once they took the oath they never got a chance to get home, never even had a three-day pass. Took their 13 weeks basic training and were shipped overseas.

"How about getting us back home after we complete our two years here?" was their theme song, and the chorus was chanted by:

Pvt. Norman Ayotte, 20, of 15 Cottage st., Woonsocket, R. I. Parents: Mr. and Mrs. Herve. This young surgical technician attended Mt. St. Charles High.

Big Lynn Cop Lifts Auto To Liberate Pinioned Driver

A strong man act by Lynn's biggest policeman today probably saved the life of a motorist pinned under an overturned coupe.

The car in which Edward J. Szchuski, 21, was driving, crashed through an iron rail and capsized on Lynn Common. Patrolmen George Healy and John O'Shea couldn't right the car to release Szchuski.

But living near-by was Patrolman Daniel Horgan, who stands six feet five inches and weighs 260 pounds, and with one mighty heave he stood the coupe upright.

Szchuski, who resides in Elmwood ave., Lynn, was taken to Lynn Hospital with a probable fractured skull and internal injuries.

2-Pound Baby Thrives in N. H.

ROCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 1—A baby girl weighing only two pounds was reported today as thriving in an incubator at Frisbie Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Harold Adams stated the tiny mite would be given a special diet and kept in the incubator until normal weight is gained.

Hitler's Finish

EMPORIA, Kan., Sept. 1 (AP) — Kansas Legionnaires have taken on a sizable order—they're going to eat "Hitler" at their third war council of the state department in Emporia, opening this week-end.

"Hitler" is a big, fat steer already slaughtered and ready to be barbecued. He will be served to the veterans of World War I Monday noon. The steer is a gift to the Kansas Legion by Harlan Altman, former Emporia Legionnaire.

Police Arrest 2 Boys in Thefts

Two youthful exponent of how to get money without working for it, but disceples of different theories nevertheless, engaged the interestof police in the lineup today

One, a 16-year-old North End youth, boasted he had robbed a country boy of $12 after throwing "just one punch" at him. The youth explained he needed money to go to a carnival

The victim was Clarence Pickens, 17, of Methodist Hill, Lebanon, N. H., who told police he had been set upon while walking near North Station

The North End juvenile is held pending inquiry into similar robberies

His companion in the lineup, although not in the robbery, was a 17-year-old from Providence, who said he had stolen $15 from his mother last week and came to inspect Boston

Police said they arrested him yesterday while he was trying to make a fast $400 by selling a parked automobile that did not belong to him

Auto Inspection Campaign Begun

Rudolph F. King, registrar of motor vehicles, announced his inspectors were starting their annual inspection today and it will continue until Oct. 31.

This year's inspection is of special importance, the registrar says, because a number of cars have been in use for long periods

Thornell Again In Hero Role

Although his own ship was crippled, Capt. John F. Thornell, 23, of Pleasant st., East Walpole, dove to the rescue of a besieged bomber and scattered seven Nazi fighters shooting down two of them, it was disclosed today in a new recital by the War Department of the famous Bay State flier's exploits.

The heroic engagement occurred April 19 during a bomber escort mission over Germany and has earned the Silver Star Medal for the Walpole ace.

Capt. Thornell

With his motor skipping Thornell was unable to keep contact with his unit and started the long journey for home all alone. But a short time later he came upon a straggling B-17 bomber being attacked by seven FW-190's who were closing in for a kill.

Despite the condition of his plane, Thornell dove headlong to the attack and severely damaged one fighter and broke up the formation of the others. With a single burst he destroyed one FW and then settled down on the tail of another, riding him toward earth until the Nazi struck a treetop and exploded. He then escorted the bomber back to its home base.

Thornell was recently home on a furlough. He is officially credited with the destruction of 21 enemy planes.

The blaze originated in a bowling alley on the top floor of the brick three-story structure. Three small stores on the street floor also suffered damage.

dan, five miles from Belgium.

Everywhere the Germans were in full flight for the dubious safety of their homeland fort lines.

"The battle of France is all but over," wrote Associated Press Correspondent William Smith White, "what is developing now is the beginning of the battle for Germany."

To the west along the coast of France, Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army group, now in high gear, rolled up the buzz-bomb belt at a mile-an-hour rate and captured Gen. Eberbach—at breakfast—in a final ignominy to the broken German Seventh army he commanded.

The escape gap for the guardians of the flying bomb sites in the Le Havre sector was narrowed to 20 miles by a British plunge to within 20 miles of Abbeville. Through this funnel the Germans were in fast flight for Flanders.

To the south Canadians were north of Rouen within 15 miles of Dieppe. Canadian, Belgian and Dutch troops fought their way 17 miles west of Rouen to within 10 miles of Le Havre.

On the southernmost American flank a 20-mile advance east of Troyes carried to Bar-Sur-Seine within 100 miles of a lineup with spearheads of the Seventh Army driving up through southern France.

On the Brittany peninsula, Americans were fighting through the last defenses of Brest in a battle left 400 miles behind the main fighting line. Cleanup of the last Nazis on the Daoulas peninsula was announced and the Americans pushed almost to the coast on the tip of land.

Germans in southern France fell back upon Lyon. An official report said some units had been ordered to return to Germany "by their own resources." Americans neared the Italian border of France, and radio reports said they had crossed into Italy.

'beat th' hell outa him" to the tune of "My Blue Heaven." The audience applauded by banging canteen cups against mess kits.

GI SOCIETY

Some of the elite reddest blood of New England GI society was there. Like Cpl. Tom H. Musker of 39 Harding ave., Malden, a photo specialist who takes care of the little movie cameras which are synchronized with a pilot's machine guns when he presses the firing button, and who used to be a cashier for a First National Store in Somerville (Pat O'Laughlin).

And Sgt. Merrill C. Holmes of 60 Heath st., Somerville, a fuel truck driver who delivers 3000 gallons of gas (100 octane) each day, and whose wife, Virginia (Peterson) is in the WACs at Bradley Field, Ct.

And Pvt. Leo Fimental of 242 Purchase st., New Bedford, an armorer who loads the Thunderbolt's six guns and fixes on the bombs, and is Mother Alice V.'s only son.

And Sgt. George W. Crimble of 90 Ontario st., Lynn, a crewman for the Groundhog, who'd just scratched his face coming to chow through the hedge brambles.

And 2 Lt Jack Bagini of 34 Gould rd, Arlington, who was starting combat as a recent arrival in France, and whose uncle, John A. Good, is a partner in Fairfield and Ellis.

And T-Sgt. Umberto Racci of 12 Crescent Knolls, Leominster, a propeller expert who adjusted the delicate mechanism which feathers the props to the exact angle of flight efficiency. (He tells wife Lena (Scaramuzzi) he's in the pink, and he looks it.)

TANKMEN THANKFUL

And Cpl. Henry Kuhl (pronounced Kyle) of 139 Babcock st., Providence, R. I., another armorer, who is puffing a pipe just received from wife Virginia (Gould, July 29, '39).

Yesterday when the writer visited with a U. S. tank unit just behind our battle line one of the young bearded commanders lay on his spine and gazed upward toward an echelon of Thunderbolts buzzing high in the sky.

"We oughta write a letter of thanks to those guys," he said. "They've helped us knock hell out of the German panzers." And it's the truth! The coordination between the 9th Fighter groups and our tanks has been one of the most effective team plays in the battle for France.

The fighters have knocked out hundreds of German tanks which bedevilled the U. S. advance, swooping low over the lines and dropping their eggs close enough to unship the caterpillar treads or turn them over with the blast.

The country hereabouts is strewn with such Nazi relics. Rusting husks which U. S. engineers haven't had time to salvage lie like medieval dragons in roadside ditches. I counted 47 such the other morning.

As I walked along the line of planes beside the airstrip, there was a cluster of men playing black jack with greasy cards under the shade of a plane wing. A painted bathing beauty was limned on the plane's fuselage and marked "Mary Jane." For the greater percentage of these fighter ships bear feminine names (more deadly than the male).

As I arrived, one of the players black jacked (Ace and Jack) — Cpl Harrison "Larry" Nawi of Ardmore pl., Falmouth Heights, a shock-haired armorer for the good ship Old 'n' Tuff, who salutes wife Barbara (Wells: May 10, '41).

One of the lads had a pile of U. S. issued French banknotes which resemble cigar coupons. But that one was not PFC Mike A. Signe of 105 Valley st., Lawrence, a former dyer for Farwell Bleachery and center fielder on the Green Flight's softball team.

Nor yet was it Cpl. Charles A Estaphan of 27 Norfolk st., Worcester, armorer for the Mary Ann who used to work for Al Butler (not the old Holy Cross footballer) at Graton and Knight.

WAITING FOR PALS

At the officers' mess, where the assembled group was waiting long beyond hunger time for some visiting delegation of U. S. political big shots and there's a deadly one, not to mention an imposition by these sightseeing senators and bureaucrats. I found 2 Lt. Milton A. Weinstein of Creek st., Wrentham, a novice pilot who used to grind threads for Wrentham Products and tells Mother Miriam not to let his duck guns rust.

And just beyond him was S.-Sgt. John H. Hoolihan, Jr., of 72 Meridedith cir., Milton, an ex-stock clerk for Paine-Webber, who is a homing station operator, one who regulates the radio beam that gives fighter pilots their directional location.

And S-Sgt. Sigmunt F. Kowynia of 39 Franklin st., Nashua, an acting 1-sgt. and personal sgt.-major. (Ed note: Enough duty for one man weighing a scant 140 pounds.)

And Sgt Frank G. Michalak of 22 Marrietta ave., Shrewsbury, a supply sgt., who was ordered to shave off his Buffalo Bill goatee lest it start an epidemic of hirsute fashions among the other G. I.'s (He still wears a tan mustache of sandpaper texture.)

WHERE'S MURPHY

And S-Sgt. John J. Murphy of 69 Boylston st., Jamaica Plain transportation non com. (Murphy, get me a jeep! Murphy, where's the staff car? Hey, where's Murphy?)

And S-Sgt Raymond Nazzaro of 380 Shirley st., Winthrop, whom I used to know when he worked for Phillips Ribbon & Carbon (Hi, Mill!) and who tells wife, Catherine (Mulligan) he's anxious about the baby.

And Major Walton B. Ten Eyck of Meadow rd., Greenwich, Ct., a briefing officer and one of the few World War I bomber pilots now in France. (Ed. note: He flew an old Peguet, was often escorted by Eddie Rickenbacker and has been attacked by Hermann Goering's circus.)

And Capt. John H. Lougee of 3 Cardinal rd., Worcester, an ex-A&P meat cutter with 65 missions who expounded on the thrill of seeing German troop trains explode in a shower of sheet iron and steam when he sent home his armor-piercing shots. And how once he'd brought down a Folke-Wulf 190 so close to the ground that the pilot's chute hadn't opened when he bailed out. That's all for today.

Congress Set For Holiday

WASHINGTON, Sept 1 (AP)—Congress cleaned up odds and ends today for a brief Labor Day holiday, after clearing major issues of the summer session into compromise-seeking conference committees.

The House in a burst of speed passed the war demobilization and reconversion bill late yesterday by a shouted vote immediately appointed conferees to meet with senators in an effort to find a common ground between two diverse measures.

The House knocked out federal plans to retrain war workers for other jobs, return migratory employes to their homes at government expense and put 3,500,000 federal employes under unemployment compensation protection.

WORK GLOVES UP

WASHINGTON, Sept 1 (INS)—OPA today announced an increase of 1 per cent in manufacturers' dollar-and-cent prices for staple work gloves and increase of 3 per cent in wholesalers' dollar-and-cent prices. Consumers' prices will not be increased.

Gunner Home After 65 Flights

Sixty-five bombing missions in nine months over Italy and France didn't provide much excitement for T-Sgt William Feinberg, 25, of Brown ing ave. Dorchester, but he admits today his Marauder bomber crew had a few narrow squeaks.

Sgt. Feinberg

Home on furlough, the youthful radio gunner, who has the Air Medal and nine Oak Leaf Clusters, hasn't a scratch and is ready to agree he was a lot luckier than most.

"Once we limped back from the target on one engine," he said, "but that was our narrowest escape."

Like most returning fliers his reticence probably covers a multitude of perilous brushes with death in European skies.

Unmarried and a graduate of Dorchester High School, he's going to Miami, Fla., for reclassification after completing his furlough. What happens after that, he doesn't know.

"Probably 65 more missions," he predicts.

Salem Legion to Continue Dances

Censor Weeds Out 'Wallflower'

City Censor John J. Spencer is going to attend thhe opening of the comedy drama. "Wallflower," at the Plymouth Theater Monday night just to make certain he didn't miss any "unpleasant lines" like those he ordered out of the script today.

"I cut out profane references to the deity as I am required to do by law," Spencer said. "I also insisted that lines between two girls having to do with how far they go in love-making should be eliminated."

Strike May Close Plant in Worcester

WORCESTER, Sept. 1—Work at the Leland Gifford Co., airplane part manufacturers, virtually was at a standstill today, with Frank L. Trainor, spokesman for the United Steelworkers of America, CIO, predicting that all 1250 workers would be on strike before nightfall.

Trainor said 250 first walked out of the machine shop division because of the threatened discharge of one man. He named the man as Earle Maguire, a foreman who was demoted and then ordered discharged.

Our Patriotic Farmers

THE WARTIME performance of Massachusetts farmers has equalled and surpassed the Government's most hopeful expectations. In spite of prolonged unfavorable weather and an increasingly acute manpower shortage, farmers have accomplished the near-miracle of producing as much food this year as they produced last year.

Announcing this good news yesterday, State Agriculture Commissioner Louis A. Webster paid a merited tribute to the Victory Gardeners of Boston and other communities.

"They are responsible for a magnificent job," he said, "which will pay large dividends next winter in the form of improved living conditions."

No group is more aware of that than the Victory Gardeners themselves. Already, they are enjoying fresh vegetables that are difficult and often impossible to obtain in the markets.

And their well-filled preserve closets assure them regular and varied meals throughout the Winter, no matter what happens or how drastic the official food regulations become.

Writer Isn't Surprised

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS states that a Chicago man, a sergeant in the Army, was "surprised" when he stepped to the porch to get the milk a few mornings ago and was greeted by a talkative crow which opened the conversation with a cheerful "hello."

Later, as the sergeant produced a piece of bread, the grateful bird took it, inquiring "How's business?"

The writer isn't disposed to share the amazement of the soldier and the Associated Press.

Many years ago, in his youth, the writer had a pet crow which could say much more than "hello" and "how's business."

Actually, the writer's crow talked as clearly as a well-trained parrot and possessed a much larger vocabulary.

In later years, whenever the writer saw nauseating pictures of crow massacres by thoughtless persons in the Middle West and other sections of the country, he recalled his childhood pet. And, needless to say, the recollection inspired many an editorial counselling kindness to birds and animals.

Responsible for the destruction of millions of damaging insects annually, the crow is one of this country's most valuable birds, as well as the most intelligent.

All our parks and museums should acquire crows and encourage children to learn that our native "parrot" is quite as wonderful as his imported cousin.

Reopen the Paper Mills

FROM NEW YORK comes a report that a shortage of waste paper has forced many salvage mills to suspend operations.

To understand how seriously this affects the war effort one has only to realize that waste paper comprises 90 per cent of the raw material used in the manufacture of shell cases, blood plasma boxes and cartons for essential military supplies.

It would be almost impossible to find an American home without a substantial amount of waste paper in its attic, cellar or storeroom.

In the interest of an early peace which will bring back our fighting sons, let us resolve now to snap out of our lethargy and put every available pound of waste paper to work winning the war.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 — Several weeks ago, the Countess Austine Cassini, who learns the most astounding things, reported that a female Peeping Tom had caused no end of embarrassment to distinguished members of the Metropolitan Club.

This club is probably the most exclusive gentlemen's hangout in Washington, or maybe anywhere else for that matter. It numbers among its habitues such notables as Sumner Welles, A. A. Berle, Jr., Nelson Rockefeller, and almost everyone else highly-placed in the affairs of government, except Ickes' head rooster.

All sections of this costly deadfall are barred to ladies, with the exception of a small dining room where dames can be taken for lunch, provided they are accompanied by members in good standing.

The visiting dolls, however, are expected to be on their most dignified behavior, in keeping with the lofty traditions of the joint.

Well, it seems the club has a sun-bathing roof where sundry of the members go after luncheon to bake their distinguished torsos. This is said to be a lovely sight, rivaling in many ways the beauties of moonlight on the Ganges or sunrise over the Hudson.

The eminent sun-soakers had taken it for granted they had complete privacy, safe from feminine leers. They forgot that a window in a hallway leading to the ladies' dining room looks down upon their body-beautiful retreat.

The first reminder they had of this was when one of the eminent sun-bathers happened to look up. He emitted a horrified squawk:

"There's a woman staring at us!"

However, lifelong training in the tortuous realm of diplomacy came to the aid of most of the undraped notables. They rolled over and tried to pretend nothing untoward had occurred. It takes years to achieve this presence of mind, which is possibly why they call them career diplomats.

One of their number, however, got rattled. He leaped up, like a ballet dancer doing an entrechat, flung his blanket around him and fled for sanctuary.

This chaste fellow — and I don't mean chaste off the roof — was John Cabot of the Boston Cabots, now engaged in profound thinking at the State Department. It appears the Cabots have a sort of ingrained aversion to being stared at in the flesh by strange ladies.

Well—a sequel to the above episode has developed. This one practically amounts to an outrage.

It seems Cabot got over his unnerving experience by gradual stages and returned to sun-bathing. But the other day some playful dame got loose in the hallway again.

The first Cabot knew of this was when she started pelting him with rolls of paper.

BUT, to commemorate, and keep ever green the latest development at the Metropolitan Club, I have revised the old epic to read:

"Cabot's a prominent clubman
"From the home of the bean and the cod.
"Where a lady seldom, if ever,
"Conks a gent on the bean with a wad."

SEVERAL DAYS AGO I reported that a party in Army Public Relations had never heard of Gen. John J. Pershing. Well, Miss Chace Conley now informs me she had a somewhat similar experience with the Navy.

She called up the Navy Public Relations branch in Church st., New York City, she says, because she wished to know the full name, rank, and title of Admiral William D. Leahy.

It was understandable that she did not have this information at her fingertips because Admiral Leahy bears the somewhat lengthy title of Navy Chief of Staff to the Commander-in-Chief.

She got an ensign. He said: "Spell the name, please."

Miss Conley spelled it out. After a long wait he returned to the phone and said:

"Sorry. Leahy is no longer with us!"

NOTE to certain parties who shall be nameless—(and I often wish to heaven they were):

There is a sight all hearts beguiling,
A youthful mother to her infant smiling,
Who, with spread arms and dancing feet,
And cooing voice, returns its answer sweet.
—JOANNA BAILLE.

"IS NOT a young mother one of the sweetest sights life shows us?" said Thackeray. No doubt you have pictures of your wife and baby taken together, but have you one taken from an angle which shows the mother looking down to the cradle and the baby smiling up at her? . . . "A research organization in New York referred me to you as being an expert on redheads." So states a young woman of Manhattan who is doing research on bricktops for an advertising agency. This is very flattering. But it is not deserved. My knowledge of redheads is meagre. All I know about the subject is as follows: Red-haired women have less hairs on their heads than blondes or brunettes. If a man and wife are red-haired, all their children are usually redheads. Jeanette MacDonald is one of the only two feminine film stars who are natural redheads. The greatest red-haired ball player was "Red" Dolin of the Phillies. The greatest red-haired novelist is Sinclair Lewis. The greatest red-haired vaudeville star was Irene Franklin. It is not a fact that red-haired people have nasty tempers. They are usually very genial. However, there is something to the claim red-haired women are a little fickle and inclined to be "love 'em and leave 'em" types.

ASIDES: Frank Sinatra's father is a fireman. Who remembers a popular song titled "My Old Man's a Fireman, What Do You Think of That?" . . . There are hospitals in New York, Chicago and Boston completely staffed by women doctors. Most men have no confidence in feminine physicians. Most women prefer male doctors. This is a curious state of affairs. Isn't it a fact women are all born doctors? Consider how many times your mother helped you with old-fashioned remedies and clever care. Consider how your wife has pulled you through minor ailments. It would seem that with equal training a woman should make a much better doctor than a man.

BRIEFLY: Now I have a reader in Friday Harbor, Wash. That's very encouraging. I am not doing so badly for a young fellow, what with having readers in Friday Harbor, Wash.; Put-In-Bay, O.; What Cheer, Ia., and Smackover, Ark. . . . Seaman John E. Wood of the Navy says: "Upon returning from a cruise of 38 days I found waiting for me 238 letters from my wife and friends. Is it a record?" . . . A subscriber named Kathrynne says there are 28 ways of spelling the name Katherine. Guess she is right, but I can only think of 22 ways of spelling that name.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q How are your Horses & Women experts doing on their research as to the characteristics of brown-eyed honey blondes? A— This research is not completed. But so far our experts have found brown-eyed honey blondes to be extremely good looking and smartly dressed but very temperamental and self-centered. They do not care for cooking. They want to occupy the spotlight and prefer a husband or escort who can be pushed into the background . . . Q So you are a cigar smoker and an expert on cigar smokers. Well, then, answer this question: Who was the hero in a famous classic novel who was a cigar smoker and what kind of cigars did he smoke? A—You have me stopped. I give up. A stogie will be forwarded to you at once.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 1—The dynamic and resourceful Mike Todd unearthed an unpublished score by Victor Herbert and kept it under wraps for over a year. He refused $350,000 for it because he believed he had something special. And this is what happens. He has signed Jeanette MacDonald to star in the operetta, which he says will be his greatest producing venture.

She reports for rehearsals in New York Jan. 1, and opens in Boston early in February. That gives Jeanette a very full schedule, with her three grand opera programs in Chicago and her 10 concert and solo appearances with the Cincinnati Symphony.

THE WICKED DAYS of New York, when Sixth Avenue was the tenderloin district and con men tried to sell Brooklyn Bridge, is the setting for the story now being prepared for Ann Sheridan. "When Old New York Was Young" takes in that era, and it's a musical with Ann wearing the costumes of 1850. I accused Jerry Wald, the producer, of having a rewrite job done on "Tony Pastor," but he said the two aren't even remotely related, and Peter Milne is writing a brand-new story.

THE JENNIFER JONES deal to play Cluny Brown is much nearer completion than anyone outside of Joseph Schenck and David Selznick knows. Ernst Lubitsch has always seen Jennifer as Cluny and wants her to play the English servant girl whose naivete is so refreshing and different. There is, however, a lot of work on the script before it can even be considered. Ernst believes Cluny's romance in the book happens too suddenly. To return to Joe and David—their legal difficulties, I have a strong hunch, will be settled this week.

I HAVE NEVER known Hollywood to be more shocked than over the report that Col. Jock Whitney had been taken prisoner by the Germans. Everyone who knows Jock loves him, and he is especially popular with the movie crowd here; he was associated with David Selznick so long and has many really warm, close friends. When Ben Lyon was here he told us of the great job Jock has done overseas. He has been in the war since our participation and we can only hope that he won't get the reported usual German treatment of war prisoners.

A BREEZY letter from New York gives information about Jeanne Cagney, sister of James Cagney, and her fiance, Kim Spaulding. Young Spaulding is currently playing the romantic lead in "Lower North," a comedy drama about Navy life. He is originally from California and has been in "Tobacco Road" and other plays. Jeanne herself is having her fling on the stage in "Marriage Is for Single People, with a try-out at Cambridge Summer Theater. She made her debut as an actress in motion pictures and was excellent in "Yankee Doodle Dandy" as Jimmy's sister.

PLENTY of arguments about whether Skippy Homeier, who played the nasty little Nazi in "Tomorrow the World" on Broadway, or young Dickie Tyler, who played it on the road, was the better—or should I say the meaner? Both youngsters are marvelous actors, but personally, I'm giving Skippy a shade the better of it. I just learned that he and little Jackie Jenkins get the top roles in "Boys Ranch" at M-G-M. "Boys Ranch" is the story dealing with the rehabilitation of delinquent boys on a big range in Texas, where the youngsters learn to be cowhands instead of potential gangsters.

I HAVE JUST been talking to Tallulah Bankhead, who may stay out here and star in "Deadlier Than the Male" for RKO. Of course, this is advance information, since the script hasn't even been written. But Tallulah was given the book, which is by James Gunn, to read and she says it's a fascinating story, half pathological and half murder mystery—a sort of "Double Indemnity," but not so sordid. She doesn't start "Czarina" until late next month, so "Deadlier Than the Male" wouldn't get under way for four months.

THE MAIL BROUGHT very good news to Mary Anita Loos yesterday. She received word from Doubleday Doran that the book she wrote in collaboration with Walter Duranty, "Lands Far Off or Near," will be published early in February. Mary, who is getting ready to go to Mexico, told me her story deals with postwar conditions in Europe and the manner in which the homeless make a new life for themselves. She says it's a strong, dramatic story. Looks to me as if she's following right in the footsteps of her brilliant aunt, Anita Loos

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Kim Hunter, who married Capt. William Baldwin, will be off the screen until after the birth of her baby; Hugh Marlowe, whose pending divorce, filed by Edith Atwater, was last week's news, dining with Natalie Schaeffer; Joan Fontaine has a date in New York with Edith Head to plan her wardrobe for "The Affairs of Susan"; the most exciting ball game I ever saw was the one played by the Hollywood Stars and San Francisco. We went with Robert Cobb, vice-president of the stars, and how he suffered when they lost. Joe and Katherine Brown are real fans and seldom miss a game.

LOUISE ALLBRITTON returns to her alma mater, the Pasadena Playhouse, this fall to do a play; talk is that Greta Garbo is reading an M-G-M story, but there have been so many false alarms about her next movie we will wait until she actually makes up her mind; Lt. Dick Tibbett, Lawrence's boy, is in town on a 14-day leave; Martha O'Driscoll, who is only waiting for her husband to sign her divorce papers, has sold her house and is moving into an apartment with her mother; if there is a public celebration of the liberation of France in Hollywood, Colin Clement believes Elsie Janis should sing "Smiles."

Hardier Crops Thrive on Cold

By FOSTER H. WEISS

(Head, Vegetable Gardening Department, Norfolk County Agricultural School, and Director of the Boston- Record-American-Advertiser Garden on Boston Common.)

Some crops benefit, others suffer, by the cool weather, especially the cool nights which we experience in New England at this time of year.

The tender crops such as beans squash and corn do not take well to these short days. But the hardier crops like lettuce, spinach, chard cabbage, broccoli, kale and endive thrive on these cool growing days and actually improve in flavor and quality.

Cool, moist nights will tend to bring on a new set of plant diseases to worry the V-gardener. These diseases, belonging to the mildew group, are common on all vine crops and some varieties of beans and tomatoes. There is not much that the average gardener can do to control them except to spray with light applications of Bordeaux.

In the case of tomatoes, it may pay to take the time to pick off all the lower leaves that have begun to turn yellow. This will allow more air to circulate and sunlight to get at the plant. These are the prime factors in controlling mildews.

A good gardener always will try to leave the land as fertile at the end of the growing season as when he started. While it is true that we can buy the chemical plant food elements removed by crops, there is one thing that is lost, namely, organic matter.

This material which comes from plant and animal refuse, is invaluable to vegetable growers. One way is to sow all vacant garden spots down to either rye-grass or rye and grow your own manure. This practice is necessary if you plan to use the garden plot for a period of years.

If you have late carrots coming along do not worry too much about them. Carrots will grow for another six or eight weeks. Weed and hoe properly and you should get a good fall crop.

Late squash of the Hubbard type should not be harvested yet. These squash are better off in the field than in storage and in most cases are not ready for use. At this time of year they have a tendency to be watery.

Sow a few feet of spinach now and again next week for a continuous supply of fall greens.

FLIER ON LEAVE MISSING

Army authorities today searched all New England for 2 Lt. John W. Scriven, Jr., Army flier, of Wyman st., Arlington, missing from his home while on furlough. He was due back at his base in Topeka, Kan., today.

Nancy Delano, Future Bride, Honored

By BETTY ALDEN

MRS. WM. NYE SWIFT—hostess to future bride.

UNLIKE MOST WARTIME newlyweds Nancy Delano and Lt. (jg) Frederic R. Childs, USNR, will be lucky enough to have a home of their own after their wedding next week, and Nancy's k. p. chores will be a pleasure with the raft of useful household equipment their friends have showered her with at pre-wedding parties.

The little apartment they'll come home to after a brief honeymoon is in Squantum where Lt. Childs is stationed at the Naval Air Base. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin W. Childs of Lexington, he recently returned from extended service in the Pacific. Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Delano of Waban, a graduate of Beaver Country Day and member of the Junior League. The wedding on Sept. 8 will be in the Church of the Good Shepherd, Waban, with a reception at Brae Burn Country Club

Adding to the exciting hustle and bustle of wedding preparations have been a number of parties for the pretty dark haired bride-to-be. Her future sister-in-law, Mrs. Carlton Klinck, who will be matron of honor, gave a luncheon and linen shower at her home in Lexington. Her cousin, Mrs. William Nye Swift (Phyllis Childs), who is staying with her parents in Lexington while Lt. Swift is on the high seas, was hostess at a surprise tea and red and white kitchen shower, and Beoky Farnsworth, maid of honor, gave a dessert party which turned out to be a shower of colorful bathroom accessories. She rigged the gifts up in pretty wrappings and bows and put them in a decorated clothes basket.

This evening the prospective bride and groom, their bridesmaids and ushers will be guests at a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Childs, Jr., followed by supper at the home of the groom's mother and dad.

A second son, Bruce, was born Aug. 29 at Richardson House to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur John Lockhart 2d (Barbara Salt) of Chestnut Hill.

War Job Ceiling Hits 400 Plants Here

An employment ceiling went into effect here today for 400 top priority war plants and all full time male workers in Greater Boston companies employing eight or more workers.

Leon J. Kowal, area director of the War Manpower Commission, said the order was aimed at stopping war workers from moving into less essential activities. He added that women workers were not included in the order "because they have stuck to their war jobs."

Postwar Reduction In U. S. Debt Urged

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (INS)—Sen. Richard Russell (D.) of Georgia, said today he will battle against postwar reduction of taxes until some of the huge public debt has been retired.

"We cannot afford to permanently carry a debt of 260 to 300 billion dollars," said Russell.

Veterans' Friend

Q. Is a warrant officer entitled to the benefits of the GI Bill?

R. O. D., Boston.

A—Yes, a warrant officer is eligible for benefits under the GI Bill if he is discharged under conditions other than dishonorable and served after Sept. 16, 1940, and has served a minimum of 90 days, or was discharged because of injury incurred in line of duty.

Q—My husband went into the Army in June and I understood I was to receive his mustering-in pay about a week later. I have received one check in July and one in August from Newark, N. J. Shouldn't I have one for June?

H. I. D., Roslindale.

A. You have been paid in full to date. You would not receive the so-called mustering-in pay, which is actually initial payment of family allowance, unless the soldier requested it within 15 days after entering the service. As he entered in June and you received a check in July from Newark, N. J., it appears that he simply filed application to be effective June 1, payment due in July.

Q—My son went into service in June and his wife received a check from Fort Devens within a week. I didn't get one. I did receive a check for $37 in July from Office of Dependency Benefits, but why didn't I have one from Fort Devens?

J. L. P., Arlington.

A—Your son's wife received the initial payment of family allowance from Fort Devens and this is in order. Her application was then made effective July 1, payment due in August. As you apparently are dependent on the soldier for substantial support only (less than half of your income), the initial payment could not be made to you, but your application was effective June 1 and the payment due in July. Initial payment of family allowance is made only when parents, brothers or sisters are dependent upon the soldier for chief support.

Labor Day Picnic Real Treat for All

By MARTHA LEE

THE LAST HOLIDAY of the summer calls for a picnic. If you can't get away, stage a picnic in the backyard. You can do it with a minimum of trouble because everybody loves a picnic and falls to and helps. Even the job of cleaning up goes quickly when many hands are ready and willing.

A grill is wonderful if you have one. So is an outdoor fireplace. In many families a fireplace is a permanent part of the outdoor equipment. They are very easy to build, too. In case you don't have one now, you can make one yourself—if your men folk all happen to be away.

OUTDOOR COOKING

But don't let the lack of either a grill or a fireplace deter you. A simple wood fire will serve the purpose just as well. All you need is a long handled fork or a pointed, green twig on which to place the food to be cooked. But remember that small fires are best to cook by. Veterans wait until the fire burns down to red embers before putting the food over it. There's a reason flames smoke up the pans, not to mention the cook's face. And they also scorch broiled food badly.

There are many good things you can cook on an outdoor fire, but best results are obtained when you choose quick-cooking foods, such as hot dogs, hamburgers, broiling chickens or ham slices. Any of these are sure to turn out well. As to vegetables, they can be cooked indoors and brought outside when ready or you can roast potatoes or corn right in the hot embers of the fire.

A tossed salad is a perfect accompaniment for such a meal, only it does mean more soiled plates. Maybe you would prefer a bowl of mixed relishes with a dunking sauce. In this you might include carrot and cucumber strips, quartered tomatoes and cabbage wedges.

DESSERT AND COFFEE

When it comes to dessert, you can't do better than serve some tasty cookies or a bit of cake or fruit to munch on while you sip refreshing iced coffee. The coffee can be made in the kitchen by your favorite method and brought outside. Or you can brew it over the outdoor fire by the steeping method and pour at once into ice-filled glasses. But whichever method you use, don't forget to make your coffee double strength to allow for dilution caused by melting ice. Just to refresh your memory, here is the way to make delicious steeped coffee.

Measure coffee into preheated utensil. Pour on measured quantity of fresh, briskly boiling water. Stir contents. Allow to settle 3 minutes, then pour the brew through a fine strainer into preheated container, preferably china or porcelain. If no strainer is available, a teaspoon of cold water sprinkled into the pot can be used to settle the grounds. Serve immediately.

LUNCHEON SALAD BOWL

1 small bunch chicory
1 small head lettuce
½ bunch watercress
2 skinned tomatoes
1 cup slivered Swiss cheese
1 tsp. caraway seeds
½ cup well-seasoned French dressing

Wash and thoroughly chill chicory, lettuce and watercress. Then break up the greens into eatable pieces, and place in a large salad bowl. Cut tomatoes in eighths and add to greens. Combine slivered Swiss cheese, caraway seeds, and French dressing, and add to the salad. Toss well, and serve for lunch as a main dish salad. Makes 6 servings.

VANILLA REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

½ cup shortening 1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten 1 tbsp. milk
2 tsp. vanilla extract
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 tsp baking powder ½ tsp. salt

Work shortening with a spoon until fluffy and creamy. Add sugar gradually, while continuing to work with a spoon until light. Add well-beaten eggs, vanilla and milk, and mix thoroughly. Sift together the dry ingredients and gradually add, beating after each addition. Shape into a roll of 12x1¾x1½ inches. Wrap in waxed paper, and chill for several hours or overnight in refrigerator. Then cut into slices 3-16 inch thick, and bake on greased or oiled cookie sheets in a moderately hot oven of 400 deg. F. for about 10 minutes. Makes 50 cookies.

Fashion

NOTHING IS SMARTER than the classic double-breasted tailleur, as much at home at the Ritz as in the office or at a club meeting. Mary Astor wears one in rich beige and brown tones of blended checks, and wears a spray of golden wheat through a slash in the pocket.—R. M.

Beauty

Cleansing Cream Sale

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

MAYBE WE CAN'T all be as beautiful as Gail Russell, star of "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" . . . but we can go a long step towards it by careful skin grooming. Read of a half-price sale that will cut the cost of your nightly creaming.

IN THESE DAYS of shortages, a half-price sale of a top-flight cosmetic is as rare as a gift of nylons!

We really didn't expect it this year . . . but we were told yesterday that a celebrated firm which makes super-swell cleansing creams would announce an honest-to-goodness half-price sale within a week.

If there's one staple beauty aid that every girl and woman must have, it is a jar of cleansing cream . . . it has become as essential as a toothbrush. There are so many brands, in a great range of prices, and it is almost impossible to say just which one agrees best with your skin.

This firm, however, has so carefully and painstakingly worked out the needs of various types of skin that they believe that one cream will not suit every type. So they provide us with a dry skin cleanser, a rich, fluffy cream; a salon cold cream, for normal or average skins, which they use in facials in their swank Fifth Avenue salon in New York, and a liquifying cleansing cream which leaves no oily film for skins that are too oily.

All three of these will be on sale for exactly half their regular price. We can't urge you too strongly to buy the giant four-dollar jar while you can get it for two dollars. It is patriotic to save jars and labor . . . and it will last you all year. The regular two-dollar size will be a dollar, plus tax of course.

The sale will start soon after Labor Day. Call the Beauty Department, Liberty 4000, after the week-end, or write me, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope, for further details.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Thursday—Yesterday afternoon we were back in Hyde Park, and it certainly was a joy to plunge into what is a pretty cold pool after all the cool weather we have had. To my surprise, I found that two of our young guests had learned to dive while I was gone.

For the last time, yesterday evening, the entertainers sent by the United Theater War Activities Committee came up for the canteen, and we went down to the little boat house, where they played to a most appreciative audience.

Since I can't be sure of being here every Wednesday, my share of entertaining the entertainers had to end last night.

SOMEONE has sent me two interesting articles, one a Readers Digest reprint from Common Sense called "The Army Saves Its Black Sheep," by Don Wharton. They take men who, for one reason or another, have committed intermediate offenses such as being AWOL for a long period of time.

They study their background, and instead of giving them a dishonorable discharge, give them a chance for rehabilitation. Many of them have gone back and accomplished valuable service.

The other article was written by John Newton Baker for Read Magazine, on the work of the League of Women Voters.

It brings out what this group of women really have accomplished and are trying to accomplish, and I think is one of the best articles I have read on their work.

Just Forget Her Nerves

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been brought up by very strict parents, the youngest of eight children, and pushed around plenty. I have acquired a terrible case of nerves. I've been this way all my life and now, at 27, am even more so. I can't seem to act natural while around people, and if they look at me I'm ready to fold up. My sister-in-law has taken me out to overcome this, but though I'm all right for an hour or so, I just collapse when a man comes into view.

I'll carry out anything you suggest, as I've tried everything I could think of to overcome this feeling.
M. C.

The best way to overcome extreme self-consciousness is to become so absorbed in something interesting that you'll forget all about your nerves. Impossible, you may say, but it's not impossible at all, to judge by the number of letters which come to this column from women who have found themselves, in doing for others.

After a short training course you could become a nurse's aide and be placed by the Red Cross in almost any hospital. Your duties would be very light, and you would have to work only about three hours a day. This is of course volunteer work.

If you need the money, there was never a better chance for getting a job than the present time. Apply for part-time work at the U. S. Employment Service in your own neighborhood. You will find the address of this organization in your telephone directory. Do something, get active. Don't sit around and brood. Also consult your family physician.

Cloth Coats That Stagger Under Fur

By BETTINA BEDWELL

CLOTH COATS that practically stagger around under a load of fur are a style that is very big for the coming cold weather. There are going to be cloth coats with full length stoles of fox fur, or of mink or other luxury pelts. There will be coats with very big warm fur collars and cuffs, and with fur bands to make them look more luxurious. If you aren't planning to have a fur coat, you'll love these.

To give you a sample, our sketch shows one. This coat is made of a suede like wool in a wonderful shade of grape purple, and it has for fur trimming a huge Froom silver fox boa that hangs to the hem in front, circles the shoulders and falls 'way down over the right shoulder. It's removable and the coat can be worn as an early fall wrap without it.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—Daily I receive scores of interesting letters on a variety of subjects. Here are two:

Helen Twelvetrees

My dear Miss Kilgallen:

I have read your column for years and derived much pleasure and much information thereby. You mentioned recently the fact that Mayor LaGuardia was readying a radio expose of juke boxes, and your exclamation, "Heavens!" must have been intended as a mild scoff. But, Miss Kilgallen, if you really knew the truth concerning these things, you'd be the first to help his campaign in this matter.

I suppose one must live "on the other side of the tracks," so to speak, in order to really know. Within the radius of two blocks, from 110th st. to 112th st. on Eighth ave., there are exactly seven juke boxes. Ponder that for a moment, and then try to place yourself in our position, "our" meaning those of us poor devils who try to sleep to do our next day's work, with always one, and most of the time seven, going full blast. We appeal to the proprietors of these places and get only insults. We call the police and ask that they cut down the sound. For one or two nights all's quiet, and then presto! It's right where it started.

With war weary nerves, most of us are light sleepers because of anxiety over dear sons away. I do hope the mayor will do something.

As for contributing to juvenile delinquency, nothing could do more. Nights when the kids should be home in bed they are hanging around Sol's, dropping money in the box and dancing around, hugging and fondling little girls in their teens who should be home also.

If I had a voice at all, I'd recommend that these juke boxes be compelled by law to cease playing after 11 at night.

Good luck, but please back the Mayor in this. Yours,

Mrs. JOHN Q.
(speaking for about 300 more like me.)

* * *

Long Island, N. Y.

My Dear Miss Kilgallen:

Thanks for mentioning me in your column. I am flattered. For ever since I've been in the East I've been a constant reader and can't remember your mentioning me before.

However, there was one thing wrong. I do live in Queens. I am married but I am not a quiet housewife.

You [illegible] read about me in the gayer spots because I've been spending some time in the more [illegible] spots overseas for USO.

Perhaps I should have cashed in on it with a little publicity. But believe me, I didn't make the trip for publicity. I went because I sincerely wanted to do something in war work.

I hadn't sung or danced since making a picture called "Swing High" some years ago in Hollywood. But I whipped up a little act and I had a lot of fun. I hope the boys I appeared before had as much.

So once again thanks for the mention and please, oh, please in your mind's eye wipe out that picture of me as a quiet housewife.

Sincerely,
HELEN TWELVETREES.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 1—[illegible] of the Week—[illegible] England and the United States are making documentaries about each other. [illegible] ... Moss Hart [illegible] of the Army Air Forces' play "Winged Victory" [illegible] Plaza [illegible] opening [illegible] I can get [illegible] ... Script Magazine tells of a millinery shop displaying two mannikins wearing nothing but barrels. A sign says: "We're nothing to wear because it's all on sale" ... The other night at the bar at Ciro's there was a slight commotion and H. D. Hover walked over to see what it was about. "This lieutenant," said the bartender, "ordered a round of drinks and now he tells me that he forgot to take his wallet with him." "That's understandable," said Hover. "I've done it myself." And he took the tab and signed it. The lieutenant was very grateful. "Thank you," he said to Hover. "And I'd like to do something for you. Let me buy you a drink" ... A reporter relates about the German general who called his entire staff together and commanded: "Pass these orders to your commands. No more looting. No more robbing! We are now on German territory."

Margo

* * *

MARGO HAS SOLD a story to The New Yorker ... Billy Gray is a very funny man at the Bandbox, a night club which is no bigger than that. Gray concludes his routine by saying: "We shall now have an intermission. Those people wanting to dance will find a bus waiting to take them to the Palladium."

* * *

STORY OF THE WEEK: The owner of a dress shop called in his woman buyer and said, "I want you to go to New York and buy everything you can. And that dress you are wearing, it's lovely. Get 100 dozen of that model."

The woman buyer arrived in New York, went to a wholesale dress concern and said to the owner: "I want a hundred dozen dresses of the model I'm wearing."

"I'm sorry," said the owner, "but you know how things are. I can only give you two dozen of that model." The woman buyer was persistent. "I've got to get 100 dozen of that model regardless of anything. I'll get fired if I don't."

"Maybe I can get you five dozen," said the owner. The woman buyer said: "That isn't enough. My boss said I've got to get 100 dozen even if I have to kiss you."

The owner of the dress concern beamed. "That's different. You come back tomorrow and I'll see what I can do."

The woman buyer was back early the next morning. The owner said: "I'm sorry I can't do it. I went to the OPA and they said that if I didn't kiss you last year I can't kiss you this year."

Boston After Dark

THE FAVOR OF A DIRECTOR or an executive in charge of motion picture production can accomplish a great deal in nudging a glamour girl nearer stardom ... Belita (Spanish for "little belle," although her real name is Gladys Lyne Jepson-Turner) chose to eschew this formula in crashing the movies ... In fact, the English skating star went the distance in fighting her way to the top by signing with Monogram—which is not yet one of the major studios ... Moviestruck kids in New England, however, are entitled to know the talents and equipment which Belita, now at the Keith-Boston before starting a new picture, brought with her in her argosy toward stardom.

* * *

BELITA SKATES WITH the best of them ... (she has been called the "best of them," for that matter) ... She began her career on skates at four, two years after she began to dance ... Before she won recognition as the best figure-skater in Europe, she had been a pupil of Anton Dolin, the famous European ballet-master, and of J. Gerschweiler, Swiss figure-skating champion. But consider, girls, the proficiencies the lovely, honey-haired Belita now has to her credit.

* * *

AS A DANCER, she is expert in every type, including ballet, classical, ballroom, tap, acrobatic and national (the last including folk dances of most of the nations) ... Besides skating, dancing and singing—she has a small, true voice—Belita is actually proficient in boxing, wrestling, fencing, painting, needlework, piano and violin ... And she speaks fluently English, French, German and Spanish ... Still wish to try to crash Hollywood?

* * *

HELEN HAYES in her hit "Harriet" comes to the Colonial Theater Oct. 9 for a limited engagement, and as the beginning of a countrywide tour ... Anne Ford, the Little-Brown publicist, is ailing with bursitis ... One of Miss Ford's clients, J. P. Marquand, is finding the theater an absorbing new interest ... With his "So Little Time" maintaining a prominent position on the best-seller list, the author of "H. M. Pulham, Esq.," and "The Late George Apley," is working night and day in New York in making "The Late George Apley" ready for the stage ... George S. Kaufman is collaborating with Marquand on the dramatization ... Boston would seem to be the logical city for the play's premiere, as the story tells of the love-story of a Back Bay lad from a conservative "best" family and a girl from the "other side of the tracks."

* * *

ARTHUR ROSS of the Bruins is being overwhelmed by congratulations on the finding of Art Jr., who was reported missing in action ... Out of Hollywood comes a strange story of Cary Grant's difficulty in getting into his own bedroom ... It seems that the mansion occupied by Cary and Barbara Hutton, when they were happy, was built in such a fashion that the star could reach his own boudoir only through an entrance from his wife's adjoining suite de nuit.

* * *

MR. GRANT HAS BOUGHT himself a 25-foot ladder, reliable informants say, and when he wishes to rescue a personal belonging or two from his room, he climbs the ladder ... And makes an entrance through a window ... Hollywood scenarists are looking at this real-life situation with real interest ... It could fit into a Cary Grant marital comedy (like "The Awful Truth", for instance) with hilarious results.

OPA to Curb Butter Upgrading

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—OPA plans to save housewives $15,000,000 a year in the price of butter.

The Office of Price Administration announced today it has begun a campaign to eliminate "upgrading," the practice of selling one grade of butter at the price of a higher grade.

Normally only 10 per cent of all butter produced in the United States is the 93-score or top grade, OPA said, but a check in June showed 90 per cent of the butter in this conutry was being sold as 93-score grade.

Whole Blood Need Stressed

Hundreds of blood donors are needed today by the Boston Blood Donor Service of the Red Cross, which on Sept. 5 joins with New York and Washington in providing Type O whole blood to be flown to Europe.

The new request is in addition to the present quota for plasma.

"At the request of Gen. Eisenhower and the doctors overseas we are flying whole blood to England for use at base hospitals," it was explained by Maj. Frederic N. Schwartz, office of the surgeon general, Washington. "The high command has asked for 1000 pints a day, and Boston, New York and Washington have been asked to meet this demand six days a week."

Pirate Treasure Found Off Cape

Treasure worth thousands, most of it in ancient coins of pirate days, lies buried in the shifting sands of Cape Cod, according to Edward Rowe Snow of Winthrop, well known local historian and wounded veteran of the North African campaign.

Back after a 175-mile hike along the Cape shores, Snow was exhibiting coins of South America, Portugal and Spain which he brought up from around the hulk of a pirate sloop which sank off the Chatham shores 300 years ago.

'Dragon Seed' Brilliant Portrait of Modern China

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Dragon Seed," Metro's brilliant film transcription of Pearl Buck's novel of modern China, comes to Loew's State and Orpheum as one of the most stirring, honest and inspiring accounts of a people's fight against the invaders.

Essentially it concerns itself with how war came to a tiny village near Nanking but, as "Dragon Seed" unfolds its story of gentle, peace-loving people goaded into war by the barbaric and sadistic Japs, it assumes universal proportions and becomes the civilized world's fight against the inhuman enemy.

Katharine Hepburn

In the beginning the varying, international accents of its all-Hollywood cast make a masquerade of this otherwise credible presentation of Chinese peasants at their labors in a tiny farming community remote from war and its horrors.

There are quiet, touching sequences showing the family life of Ling Tan, the patriarch played by Walter Huston, and his increasing clan. War is to the north, there is nothing to fear, it is agreed. Then one day the bombers come gouge holes big as duck ponds in the fertile fields. But the Chinese army in the world beyond the hills protects them from the unseen enemy. When the Japs do come, they are met at first with civility if not warmth by these simple people, who, when they learn their evil purpose, band together to protect their women and children, with Ling Tan as their leader.

But, even after this initial, murderous invasion, there are conflicts The young men would leave the land, take to the hills. The ancients, their love of their ancestral lands blurring their vision, would remain until death. Finally, after Ling Tan has reviled his third son for his lust to kill and his newly educated guerrilla fighter-compatriots, Jade helps the old man see the truth. He, assembling his aging neighbor-farmers, tells it to them as he sees it and, burning their homes and fields behind them, they follow the caravan of man-borne machinery to the hills to resist and kill the enemy.

The razing of the fields is immensely impressive and so is the muted sequence in which Jade poisons a banquetful of gorging, wine-bibbling Jap officers, one of whom kills Wu Lien, believing the quisling merchant to be the mass poisoner.

Throughout there is excellent direction by Jack Conway, who has given the film its magnificent sweep, Turhan Bey's husband to Jade marks one of our finest younger actors.

Once over the hurdle of accents, performances demand the utmost admiration. Miss Hepburn's Jade seems to burn with the spirit of a Joan d'Arc and in Huston's Ling Tan there is the wisdom and integrity of the simple, humble people of the earth. Aline MacMahon, as his wife who is all fire and spirit until war impinges on her home, is vastly appealing Tamiroff's quisling, a bit unwieldy at the start, rounds out to gigantic proportions as a Jap appeaser.

All-Star Bill At K-Boston

The new stage show at the RKO-Boston is unusually long—and instead of the customary star or two it has five or six.

While there is no visiting band, it is a good solid group that beats it out with Boston's Larry Flint, who does a better job than some of the star-spangled ensembles in the same spot.

Happy Felton, the rotund comic of the Olesen and Johnson revues, is this week's master of ceremonoies.

The Shyrettos, two boys and a girl, are really something on trick bicycles. Then there's Margie Hart, who explains why she's "The Laziest Gal in Town" and exactly why "I Wanna Get Married."

Smiley Burnette, Gene Autry's cowboy partner, then appears in a comedy "singie." And he, like the Felton and Hart contributions, leans to the uncouth in his humors. After yesterday's first show the scrubbing brush and the blue pencil will no doubt have gone to work on the three of them.

The K-Boston bill winds up with Belita, the sinuous skater and dancer from the movies, and the appearance of Phil Regan, popular tenor.

'Rebecca' Will Open Guild Series Oct. 16

"Rebecca" . . . and not, as has been mistakenly assumed, "Othello" . . . will initiate the season's subscription series of six plays to be presented here by the Theater Guild and American Theater Society. Daphne DuMaurier's dramatization of her own novel will open at the Plymouth Theater on Monday evening, Oct. 16. Subscriptions are 30 per cent ahead of last year, Rebekah Hobbs, local subscription manager, reports.

Wartime Romance Film Good Met Entertainment

By DON WARD

There may be no Academy Awards destined for "I Love a Soldier," the new Metropolitan film, but by that time an enormous amount of people will have had much honest amusement from watching this shrewdly contrived romance of wartime.

Paulette Goddard and Sonny Tufts, the same team that did so well with "So Proudly We Hail," are paired again—she as a lady welder who dances away her evenings at a soldier canteen, he as a husky non-com, veteran of the South Pacific, who won't be danced away.

Barry Fitzgerald, last seen as the crotchety old priest in "Going My Way," which, incidentally is turning into something like the most popular movie ever made, now resumes his modest "bit" series of characters. All too briefly he appears as a frowsy conductor of a street car, wearing the old mustache again and giving more than his passengers a ride.

The dilemma of plot is: Shall Miss Goddard get married now to that manly soldier boy or wait until the war's over? The question is perplexing on a national scale. While Paulette Goddard and Sonny Tufts are settling it in their own way in "I Love a Soldier" the audience is privileged to witness a series of drawbacks that are in turn frivolous and serious.

The acting of Miss Goddard and Mr. Tufts—particularly Mr. Tufts—in these moments is all to the good. Miss Goddard suits exactly her shrewish working-girl character; Sonny Tufts is virtual perfection as a "natural" soldier type—G. I. to the core.

The locale looks like San Francisco. The scenes are a boarding house, dance hall, amusement park, railroad station, all life-like.

For a wartime romance of the very best boy-meets-girl genre "I Love A Soldier" is so good as any, better than most

Yawkey's Loyalty To Cronin Refreshing

By JACK CONWAY

A three-year contract for a total of $100,000 was Tom Yawkey's answer to Jimmy Foxx and the other critics of Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox. One has to admire Yawkey. He is what the young men around sports like to refer to as a standup guy in a jam.

Tom Yawkey

Yawkey is not a fair weather friend. He does not cut corners when a person he likes is under fire. It is then that the youthful millionaire proves his loyalty and shows his admiration of the person with whom he is associated. It is seldom that Yawkey showed as much feeling as he did when he replied to Foxx's criticism of Cronin as a manager. Foxx had charged that the reason the Sox had not won a pennant was because Cronin did not know how to handle pitchers. Yawkey felt it as an uncalled for criticism.

Foxx repeatedly made the same statement to sports writers when he was an active player on the Sox. He was sitting back on the bench second guessing Cronin which is one of the easiest things to do in sports or in anything else. Meanwhile Yawkey and Cronin had kept Foxx on the payroll long after he had passed his baseball peak. Jimmy was still drawing a large salary when he lost his batting eye and was giving some dismal exhibitions of fielding.

Yawkey had reason to resent Foxx's criticism of Cronin. Joe was not only injured by the Foxx statement, but they also tended to tear down the ball club.

There is always an element of sour grapes in any one who hits at people with whom he was formerly associated.

Cronin was not the most perfect manager in the world when he was an active player. I do not believe it is possible for a player-manager to do as well as a bench manager like Joe McCarthy, Billy Southworth or Connie Mack. The player-manager has to give thought to his personal playing as well as to the handling of the team.

It has been a different story this year when Cronin has not played regularly. He has been able to sit back on the bench and map out his moves. He has got good results with the shifting material at his command. This experience will prove helpful to Cronin in the post-war period when he will have a wealth of first class players. Joe will then have his opportunity to prove his worth as a manager. He will have the necessary playing strength with which to win a pennant.

* * *

Cronin Has Courage

There has not been anyone who has been so silly as to attack Cronin's courage. One may not always admire his selection of pitchers or the way he places his other players, but there is not anyone, even Foxx, who has suggested that Joe lacks courage in a tight spot in a ball game.

"I do not believe there ever was a ball player with a greater fighting heart than Joe Cronin." Hugh Duffy said to me one day several years ago when the Sox were in a bad slump. "Other players may give in to a series of defeats, but Cronin never will do so. He is always out there on the ball field giving everything he has. He will eventually force the breaks."

There was the occasion when Cronin took the Sox into New York and won five straight games from the league-leading Yanks.

Ball players as a class like Cronin. One has to admire a leader who will inject himself into the lineup as a pinch hitter with three men on the bases and then slam the ball over the outfield wall.

Soldiers in France will fight their hearts out for Gen Patton because he goes out front with them. Gen. Patton defies death from enemy bullets, but by so doing he inspires his men. They know he is taking the same risks that they are.

I spent some time with the late Brig. Gen. Teddy Roosevelt at Fort Devens on the night of a sports show before he led the gallant First Division to Africa. I asked him if his men maintained their morale under the hard training.

"When my men go out on maneuvers at night, I go with them," said the general. "When it rains, I stand out there in the rain with them, and am the last one to go indoors. When my men know I am taking it with them, they maintain their high spirits."

In baseball, Cronin always took it with his men. It is to be regretted that at times some of his highest priced stars did not give as much to the game as their leader did.

Coleman Get Reward

Bob Coleman was deserving of the two-year contarct he received from the Braves. A strategy board of managers composed of Joe McCarthy, Luke Sewell, Connie Mack and Bill McKechnie could not have done any better with this year's Braves than Coleman did. One must have material to get anywhere in sports, and Coleman lacked this asset.

As soon as the war ends, Coleman will get a wealth of new players. Some of these players left the Braves to enter service. Others were on some of the Braves' farm clubs when they entered the armed forces.

John Quinn had built up a top farm system for the Braves at the time the war started. It should produce results in the post-war period.

The war is moving along at such a fast pace that baseball may start to return to normal by the early part of next summer.

Let us hope that when it does that the Boston baseball parlay of Cronin and Coleman may click. The public has tired of ending up with tickets on also rans in baseball.

Johnson Goes Hit Crazy And Leads the League

By BILL GRIMES

After breaking even on an eight-game road trip to Philadelphia and New York, the Red Sox are home today for three days to play single games with Connie Mack's Athletics at Fenway Park.

The Croninmen are 4½ games behind the St. Louis Browns, who returned to the Mound City yesterday after a trip which should have cost them their hold on first place.

But for the loss of Bobby Doerr and Leon Culberson, the Red Sox probably would have closed in on the Browns during the last week. Doerr was the leading American League batter when he was forced out of the lineup with a sacri-iliac and Culberson, after suffering a slight recurrence of an old knee injury, developed two boils on his other knee.

Dr. Thomas K. Richards examined Culberson yesterday and then ordered him to the Wyman House for a few days rest. Bobby Doerr is taking diathermy treatments from Trainer Win Green and is about ready to return to his second base berth.

JOE BOWMAN GOES TODAY

During the first two games in Shibe Park, the Red Sox didn't do as much hitting as was expected of them but after that they really teed off, particularly Bob Johnson and George Metkovich on all opposing pitchers. Unfortunately, however, the Yankees discovered enough "cousins" on Joe Cronin's staff to get themselves as even break. They beat Rex Cecil and Emmett O'Neill to a pulp and didn't pull their punches on the Red Sox hurlers, who tried rescue acts.

Joe Bowman and George Woods turned in well pitched games against the Athletics last Sunday and Clem Dreisewerd, the latest acquisition to the Red Sox corps, made a very impressive major league debut against the Yankees, while "Red" Barrett picked up another victory doing relief work.

Accompanied by Bill Huddelston, Mgr. Joe Cronin flew home from New York, Wednesday evening, and spent the off day at Osterville. Upon his return today, the "Skipper" announced that Joe Bowman would do the pitching this afternoon. He added that George Woods would get the nod tomorrow and that on Sunday he would show the Boston fans Clem Dreisewerd, his big southpaw, who beat the world's champions.

"I wish you could have seen Bob Johnson and George Metkovich wheel their bats on this trip," said Joe Cronin today. "And, Pete Fox and little Jimmy Bucher also came through in grand style. In all the years I've been in the league with him, I've never seen Bob Johnson as 'hot' as he has been of late. It is no surprise to me that he is leading the American League. And have you noticed that Johnson, Doerr and Fox top the American League hitters?"

Following their three-game series with the Athletics, the Red Sox will pull out for Washington Sunday night for a doubleheader with the Senators on Labor Day.

BOB JOHNSON, THE PATTON OF BASEBALL—The big fellow has reached the batting peak in his league. Joe Cronin says he has never seen a player go so hot as Bob in the last two weeks.

Home Stand Gives Tigers Edge in Race

By Associated Press

Detroit won the American League "August" pennant by roaring through 27 games with 19 victories at a fancy .704 pace and today had the St. Louis Browns on the run within easy shooting distance of the Tigers, Yankees and Red Sox.

One over-sized horse blanket would cover the four contenders, all grouped within 3½ games of the Brownies, but New York rested in second spot at the moment, only two lengths back.

Steve O'Neill's Bengals were a game back of the Yanks, but the schedule, calling for them to play 18 of their remaining 29 games at Briggs Stadium, favored them over the McCarthy clan, which finished with 19 of its 27 on the road.

SCHEDULE HURTS SOX

St. Louis had a wide edge if home play proved decisive, as the Brownies will play 22 of their 27 at Sportsman's Park and, like Detroit, finish up entertaining all the easterners.

Boston, with 19 of 26 away, got the worst break from the playing chart.

During the past month the Tigers showed wide superiority over the field although they spent most of August in the East and were tied with Chicago for fifth Aug. 1. The Yanks gained ground by taking 19 and losing 13 since July 31. Boston just stuck above water with 16 of 31 and the Browns sunk below .500 with a 13-14 August record.

Dizzy Trout and Hal Newhouser personally accounted for 13 of the Tigers' 19 triumphs and only two of their defeats. Trout's win streak, started July 29 with a relief win over the Yanks, was stretched to nine last night by his eighth successive August victory.

The twin ace of the Tiger staff who has pitched 26 complete games stepped in to grab a 4-3 verdict over St. Louis in the opener of an important four-game set and helped win his own game with a ninth-inning single.

WILLIS HUDLIN LOSER

Trout later was forced at second but the man who forced him, Doc Cramer, scored the big run on Pinky Higgins' single after an infield out. The veteran Willis Hudlin, brought up from Little Rock, was the loser, relieving Sig Jakucki.

While the Tigers and Browns prepared for their night game, the Yanks grabbed a pair from Washington, 9-4 and 4-3 behind rookies Walt "Monk" Dubiel and Mel Queen to pick up a game and a half. Johnny Lindell's triple unloading the sacks ruined Mickey Haefner in the opener and Frank Crosetti's ninth inning homer with two out downed Alex Carrasquel in the finale.

No other American Leaguers were scheduled and the entire National loop enjoyed an open date.

Marshfield Raises Minimum Purses

MARSHFIELD FAIR GROUNDS, Sept. 1—Minimum purses at the Marshfield Fair races have been raised to $400 starting today. And for the Labor Day Handicap the purse has been raised to $600. This action was taken by the Fair officials after they had observed the results of the first two days of mutuel play.

This year all the Massachusetts fairs increased their purse distribution over what it was at their last meetings. Brockton and Great Barrington have already decided what their purses will be but the probability exists that if conditions warrant it there will be a still further increase at those two fairs.

A majority of the horses being raced here will remain either at this track or ship over to the Brockton Fair grounds and lay off next week.

The Brockton Fair opens its gates on Sept. 10, with racing on the following day and closes on Sept. 16. Great Barrington follows immediately thereafter.

Cochrane's Team Would Do Well in Series

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Sept. 1 (AP)—Certainly no one is going to propose such a move, but maybe Great Lakes' ball team would do all right in the 1944 World Series.

Mickey Cochrane's Sailors, a former major leaguer manning every position, finished their season yesterday—and no post-season games are scheduled. The records disclosed 48 wins out of 50 games, a .960 mark, and the impressive showing was tops for any of the three war-time teams at the big Naval Training Center.

Ten of the victories were over major league teams, while the only big time club to whip the Sailors was (surprise) Brooklyn's last place Dodgers.

Teams beaten included the leading St. Louis Browns, Boston Red Sox, Detroit, Chicago's Cubs and Sox; Philadelphia's two entries, New York Giants, and their latest victim, Cleveland.

In 1943 the Tars won 52, lost 10 and tied one for an .839 mark, while the first team Cochrane piloted in World War II at the center played .818 ball, winning 63 and losing 14.

Virgil (Fire) Trucks, who won 16 and lost 10 for Detroit last season, was Cochrane's ace. He won his 10th straight game yesterday against Cleveland, against no defeats. Mickey, who in 25 years, also had other ex-big league hurlers, including his former batterymate, Schoolboy Rowe, and Bill Brandt and Bob Klinger.

Rowe saw double duty with the sailors, also playing in the outfield and in yesterday's 17-4 win over Cleveland he slapped out a pair of homers and a single, while his mates touched three Indian hurlers for 18 additional blows.

Dogs Bark at Critics, Offer Half Million

One half million dollars for the National War Fund—largest of all single contributions—will be donated by Wonderland, Revere, during the last 16 days of the 1944 greyhound race meeting.

This was announced yesterday afternoon at a luncheon at the Copley-Plaza Hotel attended by leading representatives of the Greater Boston United War Fund, the American Red Cross, the Society for the Propagation of the Faith of the Archdiocese of Boston and countless other local charities.

A committee of prominent Boston businessmen appointed by the National War Fund, Inc., to take charge of the Wonderland campaign was unanimous in its praise and gratitude to the directors of the greyhound track and predicted the contribution would be the greatest of all donations to the War Fund.

Michael T. Kelleher, vice-president of the Marsh-McLellan Insurance Co., who only a few days ago returned from a goodwill mission throughout South America on behalf of the American Legion presided at the luncheon.

Charities in this vicinity as outlined by General Chairman Kelleher which will share in the huge Wonderland contribution include the Greater Boston United War Fund with its 275 individual charitable agencies, the Red Cross, Society for the Propagation of the Faith, and Boston American-Record-Sunday Advertiser.

Chairman Kelleher represented the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, administrator of the Boston Archdiocese, and indicated that the Propagation of the Faith's share would be used in devastated areas of the South Pacific in the care of the soldiers' graves of all faiths and other post-war activities.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 1 (AP)—A 92-pound black drum fish, said by the New Jersey Council to be the world's record catch for its species, is leadi ngits class in the fourth annual New Jersey governor's fishing tournament, the council announced today.

Joe DiMaggio To Stay in Army

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1 (AP)—Sgt. Joe Dimaggio, the former New York Yankee outfielder, was back home in San Francisco today on what he called "Army business" after two months in Hawaii.

Dimaggio declined to discuss his reported illness while with the Seventh Army Air Force, but said he would not ask for a medical discharge. He said he was in top condition.

Boston Yanks Hit Competition

Far from a finished product, but having made reasonable strides in the past two weeks, the Yanks checked out of Dean Academy this morning ready to start on a short tour where they will show their grid wares at Sampson Naval Training Station, at Cleveland and at Buffalo.

Equipping his Yanks with some 40 plays from the greatly discussed "Q-T" formation as a starter, Coach Herb Kopf will attempt to sharpen the rough edges in a scrimmage against Lt. Com. Jimmy Crowley's Sampson Sailors at the base in Sampson, N. Y., Sunday afternoon.

The Yanks will go from Sampson to Cleveland to play the Rams
